Mexico City, March 3.—(AP)—Revolution flared on three sides of the capital tonight. The state of Vera Cruz was almost entirely held by rebels, the isthmus of Tehuantepec to the south was reported in their hands, and another group had taken the northern border state of Sonora without bloodshed.

General Jesus Maria Aguirre's seizure of Vera Cruz cut the capital off from the Gulf of Mexico to the east. The holding of the isthmus would be of small value to the revolutionists unless they possess the Pacific port of Salina Cruz. Possession of Sonora gave them control of the northern end of one of the three main railroad routes from the United States.

Supreme War Council.
Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil summoned a special session at this palace of the supreme war council and the cabinet. Former President Plutarco Elias Calles joined the conference to lend his strong hand to the federal defense. Governor Aaron Saez was another strong political leader who rallied to the president.

The capital was comparatively quiet although trucks filled with soldiers rumbled through the streets and at Valbuena air field the air force was mobilized. Military couriers dashed up to the headquarters of the supreme war council at intervals, and strong military guards were in evidence everywhere.

The revolt had struck simultaneously in three quarters. Late tonight a federal censorship was established.

States Revolt.
General Jesus Maria Aguirre, military commander of the state of Vera Cruz, led the troops stationed there in rebellion against the government. Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil. Almost the entire state was reported in his hands, cutting the capital off from the Gulf and bringing the revolt within 50 miles of Mexico City.

In the northern border state of Sonora, Governor Fausto Topete declared for the uprising, and the border point of Nogales received word that 13 other states were involved. The purpose of the revolution was understood there to be to place in the presidency the late President Plutarco Elias Calles, former minister of Mexico to Great Britain.

While Mexico was in a turmoil, United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow with his family and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was in the isolated village of Cuernavaca, 40 miles south of Mexico City. Although the embassy had difficulty in reaching them because there was no telephone in the Morrow residence, it was believed that the way was clear for their return. Other Americans were reported stranded in Vera Cruz but temporarily in the capital were desperately attempting tonight to get airplanes to carry them to their families at Vera Cruz, from which they

MYSTERY MURDER
COMES TO LIGHT
NEAR HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Calif., March 3.—(AP)—The severed head of a blonde woman, estimated to have been between the age of 25 and 40 years, was found half buried in dirt in Nicholas canyon just off the outskirts of Hollywood's residential section by two student hikers late today.

The discovery sent a score of police into the canyon, where tonight they searched with flashlights for the missing body. They reported the condition of the head showed the woman had been dead at least two months.

a Collision.

Cartersville, Ga., March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, 93-year-old "Grand Old Woman of Georgia," and the only woman who ever held a seat in the United States senate, was seriously injured in an automobile collision on the public square here today.

The versatile and active politician, author and orator of the Empire state, was cut about the face and a facial artery at the point of the lower left jaw was severed by flying glass. She was removed to a hotel and physicians worked two hours before the flow of blood was stopped.

Loss of blood and possible septic pulmonary disturbance from local anesthesia was declared likely to have serious consequences for a woman of her advanced age. However, Mrs. Felton took her illness calmly, and sat patiently while two physicians took 20 stitches in her face. There was no heart irregularity, a reliable stroke of good fortune, according to physicians, who said her simple regular life in this north Georgia town augured well for her ultimate recovery.

Riding With Grandson.
Mrs. Felton was en route with her grandson, William H. Felton, and his family, to Calhoun, Ga., to visit relatives. Their car collided with an automobile driven by Tom Croft, of Cartersville. The Felton car was wrecked and Mrs. Felton and her granddaughter, Lillian, were catapulted against a rear window glass.

Both Felton and Croft were arrested on charges of reckless driving. Dr. S. M. Howell and Dr. R. E. Adair attended Mrs. Felton at the Rhyne hotel, and ordered her left there for at least 24 hours until they were able to determine whether there would be any complications.

No one else in either of the two automobiles which figured in the crash was injured, but both cars were badly damaged.

First Woman Senator.
Mrs. Felton was appointed United States senator from Georgia on October 3, 1922, by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson. Mrs. Felton had stumped the state in her 85th year for the governor and Senator Watson. She was a senator for 22 hours, and closed her Washington career with a dramatic speech which drew waves of applause from a gallery occupied for the most part by women. Termed a breath of lavender and old lace from the south, Mrs. Felton blazed the trail for American womanhood in the United States senate.

Its members are: Secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, of New York; secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, of Pennsylvania; secretary of war, James W. Hyde, of Missouri; secretary of the interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur, of California; secretary of labor, James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and secretary of commerce, Robert Patterson Lamont, of Illinois.

COOLIDGE ATTENDS
FAREWELL SERVICE

Breaks Day of Labor with Church Attendance—Is Host to Herbert Hoover
at Dinner.

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Pressing cares of state broke a little into the calm of the last Sabbath in the white house for Calvin Coolidge.

He was at his desk both morning and afternoon, dealing with inescapable responsibilities of his high office, even though he was trespassing against his own rule of Sabbath observance, as he has done only in urgent emergencies.

With that behind him tonight, the man who goes back to private citizenship tomorrow, after more than nineteen years of continuous service in public office, turned to a last dinner table talk with his former lieutenant, Herbert Hoover, who succeeds him as president. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover and Vice President-elect Charles Curtis and his sister and hostess, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, were the last dinner guests at the white house of the Coolidge administration.

Many Callers.
But it was duty first, as always, with the retiring president when he arose this morning. The first appearance of the president and his wife out of the white house was to the First Congregational church, where Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge have worshiped since they slipped into Washington eight years ago.

What To Wear Is Puzzling
Mesdames Hoover, Coolidge

BY MARGUERITE YOUNG,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover faces the dawn of inauguration day still undecided what to wear.

So does Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. The first lady-to-be, however, rested peacefully tonight after a day arduous from the stares of an already insistent curious public. The weather, it was said authoritatively, will be the final deciding factor in the choice of her inaugural costume.

Mrs. Coolidge, her secretary said, "could not tell" how she will be garbed when she appears as the first lady for the last time tomorrow morning. She also will be guided by the weather. There was similarity as well as dramatic contrast in the two women's Sundays. Both rose and went to church with their husbands.

While Mrs. Coolidge returned, at noon, to a quiet family meal in the white house, Mrs. Hoover went back to the red brick home on the hill to a prelude to the many important functions in which she will be the leading feminine figure as the president's wife: she and Mr. Hoover received the members and ladies of the new cabinet for luncheon. Only one cabinet wife—Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, who is in Italy and consequently will not be present for some weeks yet—was absent. During the afternoon, while Mrs. Hoover rested at home, sheltered from the prying eyes of hundreds of private citizens who milled about the house, Mrs. Coolidge received the governors and their wives.

With the hour of her passing from the white house almost at hand, speculation was rife on her future activities. Her small and intimate close friends were guarded from reporters. Her hosts of admirers, out of deference for the feelings of one who has served them with a model of charm and warmth of personality, kept away from the executive mansion.

Freedom for One.
In contrast, hundreds gathered around the Hoover home, determined to satisfy as far as possible their curiosity about the new first lady. Tuesday, it has been generally inferred, will mean one thing to Mrs. Coolidge—freedom. Those who know her realize that a definite sadness will permeate inauguration for her. She has made innumerable close friends in the capital and many whom she has met in the official social lanes that the mistress of the white house must travel have remained to become very close to her.

CONGRESS CLEARS
MAJOR CALENDAR

Deficiency Bill, Carrying
Atlanta Appropriation,
Wins in First Sunday
Session in Six Years.

BY WALTER CHAMBLIN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Under the eyes of thousands waiting to reclaim the inauguration of a new president the seventh congress today all but wound up its business to retire from power at noon tomorrow.

A Sunday session, the first in six years, was made necessary by a last-minute but apparently futile attempt to postpone the placing into effect of the national origins clause of the immigration act but the meeting afforded an opportunity for the inaugural visitors to see congress at work—and they made the most of it.

The house completed congressional action on the appropriation bills setting finally the long-standing dispute over an increase in funds for prohibition enforcement by unanimous vote. A total increase of $3,219,000 is provided. Including funds previously appropriated this will make a direct appropriation of approximately $18,000,000 for dry law enforcement.

Appropriation of over two million dollars for construction of new federal building at Atlanta is included in the bill.

Chambers Are Crowded.
The senate met to give Senator Nye opportunity to press his measure, postponing effectiveness of the restrictive immigration bill for one year, but adjourned in a half hour. Senator Robinson scolded the senate for meeting on Sunday. In the house, Representative Lankford, of Georgia, was not allowed to speak in censure of the Sunday meeting, but placed his remarks in the record.

COURAGE DOUBTED

General Is Solely Responsible for Disaster; Rescue Story Unacceptable, Court Says.

Rome, March 3.—(AP)—The report of the commission of inquiry appointed by Premier Mussolini made public through the semi-official Stefani agency today, places responsibility on General Umberto Nobile for the loss in the arctic of the dirigible Italia.

The report said that the loss of the dirigible was due to its maneuver (presumably referring to the long flight to the pole from which it was returning when wrecked) and the condition and use of equipment, responsibility for which was the commander's.

The commission was unanimous in stating that the conduct of Captain Alberto Mariani, pilot, and Captain Filippo Zappi, navigator, was not open to censure but on the contrary was worthy of praise.

In considering the rescue of Nobile the commission found that his act was without acceptable justification and that perhaps the only justification was the strain of the situation which did not permit him to gauge soundly the value and consequences of his act, even though it was done at the insistent invitation of the Swedish aviator, Captain Lundborg.

HOOVER'S CALMLY
AWAIT INAUGURAL

BY W. B. RAGSDALE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, private citizen for only a matter of hours, already found himself crowded today with requirements of his approaching high duties to the exclusion of his usual rule of Sunday relaxation.

Despite this pressure on his time, however, he made opportunity to go with Mrs. Hoover and other members of his family to the little Friends' meeting house in Columbia Heights for an hour of quiet, self-searching religious observance.

W. B. Hoover, who was a dinner guest of the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the white house tonight.

27 GOVERNORS
IN WASHINGTON

Weatherman Warns That Rain Will Dampen Spirts of Visitors; Greatest Radio Hook-Up.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 3.—The greatest power which it is the lot of any man on earth to administer will change hands tomorrow when Calvin Coolidge turns the presidency of the United States over to Herbert Hoover.

This shy, quiet Quaker engineer will be the thirtieth man to take into his hands the destinies of what has now grown to be the most powerful nation in the world.

Known the world over as one of the outstanding administrators of the age, Mr. Hoover will now take upon himself the heaviest responsibilities which can fall upon any citizen of this nation.

Rain in Offering.
The inaugural parade is almost certain to be caught by a rain storm now moving rapidly upon Washington from the Mississippi valley and east gulf coast, Charles Mitchell, official forecaster, told the United News tonight.

In an attempt to make his disappointed inquiries feel a little better, he adds that he'll be glad if he's wrong and the last parade gets home with dry feet. But he is certain this won't happen.

Between 200,000 and 300,000 people are expected to line the avenue to witness the parade, which will officially close the ceremony of making Herbert Hoover the 30th president of the United States.

The ceremonies which take place at noon tomorrow afford the most important official pageant which our democracy has the opportunity to witness. Thousands are here from all corners of the nation to witness the two-hour parade which will follow the simple swearing in of the new president.

House Meets Before Noon.
The marvels of modern civilization have been mobilized that the whole American people and large sections of the remainder of the world may actually hear Mr. Hoover repeat after Chief Justice Taft the short binding oath which makes him the new president of the nation.

Radio hooked up in the greatest combination ever organized will enable practically every American, who wishes, to listen to the actual words which are spoken. Sound movies will record the entire ceremony with the most minute fidelity for future generations, that our great grandchildren may see and hear the event over again just as we might have seen and heard George Washington as he took the oath on the balcony of the federal building at Broad and Wall in New York nearly 150 years ago.

Tomorrow the house meets at 10 a. m. to finish some routine work and give members an opportunity to see their farewells. The senate meets at 11 a. m. and after brief routine business will receive the outgoing and incoming presidents, the cabinet, diplomats and all high officials who will witness the swearing in of Senator Curtis as the new vice president.

LEGION PAYS TRIBUTE TO MAJOR CANDLER

Tribute was paid to the memory of Major Asa Warren Candler by several score members of the American Legion gathered at special memorial services conducted Sunday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Six speeches, covering as many phases of the beloved legionnaire's life, were given by persons with whom he was for years associated both in and out of the legion and each of these speakers gave different pictures of the versatile soldier, lawyer and citizen.

Commander Basil Stockbridge opened the meeting and then turned it over to Walter LeCraw, chairman of the memorial committee, after which the commander gave the first speech, "Buddy Asa Warren Candler as a Member of Atlanta Post No. 1." In this address the speaker recalled the many services rendered by Major Candler to his post and his "buddies."

Mrs. Ira Farmer then told of the dead leader's relations with the legion auxiliary under the topic, "Legionnaire Candler and the Atlanta Unit No. 1, American Legion Auxiliary." Next Judge E. E. Pomeroy told of Major Candler's days of service with the Fifth Georgia regiment, in which the judge served with him.

"Voyageur Asa W. Candler in the Forty and Eight" was the topic under which John M. Slater, Jr., told of the major's popularity in that group. His work as head of the state legion was told of by Joe Carr, state adjutant, speaking on "Past Commander Asa W. Candler and the State Department of Georgia, American Legion."

The final tribute to a well-rounded life of service was paid by Robert Troutman, who extolled Major Candler as a citizen and as a member of the community distinguished in peace as in war.

At the conclusion of the meeting a resolution was passed by the group providing that the record of Major Candler's service to the organization be inscribed officially upon the records of the post.

Music for the occasion was provided by the 22nd infantry band. The committee in charge of the meeting was composed of Past Commanders Frank Kempton and Frank B. Saunders, in addition to Mr. LeCraw.

SALVATION ARMY CENTER AIDS 977 IN LAST 10 WEEKS

Emergency relief was given to 977 men of five nationalities and three different religious faiths at the Salvation Army social service center during the last ten weeks, Captain Hugo Bloomberg, officer in charge, reported Saturday.

Native Americans numbered 803, the others being Irish, Mexican, English, Spanish and Filipino. Protestants numbered 514, Catholics 157 and Jews six. Three, who were tired over brief periods of distress, were in addition to the number in the industrial home where a permanent rehabilitation program is being carried on for men unfit for ordinary employment. The home is supported by clothing, furniture, rags and paper contributed from Atlanta homes.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ANSWERS ALARM AT MONKEY HOME

They made it hot for Jocko Saturday night. So hot, in fact that his house burned down.

It was a wee bit chilly, you will remember, and so Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Green, of 1111 Oak street, heated four bricks in the fire, wrapped them in a burp sack and tucked them about Jocko, a pet monkey of whom they are very fond, and who lives in a little house of his own in the back yard.

A half hour later they heard Jocko squealing and jumping about, rattling his chain. They rushed out and saw Jocko's house on fire. They unfashioned Jocko and called the fire department.

Fire reports cryptically said "Monkey residence. Used bucket of water."

The visit here will be the second included in an elaborate southern tour, which calls for stops at Tampa, Miami, West Palm Beach, St. Augustine, Asheville, Louisville and other points. Immediately after arrival the party will be taken by special busses to the Astor hotel for breakfast. A visit to Stone Mountain, Grant park and the Cyclorama will occupy the forenoon, prior to a luncheon at the Biltmore. Several leading Atlanta educators will meet with the group at the luncheon, it was said Sunday. The Stephens students will remain here until 2 o'clock this afternoon, at which time their special Pullman train, consisting of ten cars, will leave for Jacksonville.

The United States and Caribbean Countries—By William Whitley Pierson, Jr., M. A., Ph. D. (Columbia university), University of North Carolina.
Mexico and the United States—By J. Fred Rippey, Ph. D., Duke university, for many years and hopes through further study of the twins, to get a new slant on mental processes of twins and comparative mental values between individuals of a twin estate. Recently he mailed questionnaires to members of the Oglethorpe faculty to learn observations formed by teachers under whom the Parrish twins studied while living here. The answers revealed individual differences that are held to be well worth following a clue to twin psychology. One respondent to the questionnaire pictured Helen as appearing to be more masculine, aggressive and self-reliant, while Olive was viewed as possessing the characteristics more typical of a feminine mind and showing greater intuitiveness.

FARMERS ADVISED TO LEAVE POORER LAND IDLE YEAR

Eugene Talmadge, state commissioner of agriculture, advises farmers to let some of their poorer lands lay idle this year if it is found impossible to fertilize such lands.

"I understand that it has been difficult for some of the farmers to secure fertilizer," says Mr. Talmadge in the current issue of the Georgia Market Bulletin. "If you cannot get all the fertilizer you want suppose you let some of the poorest of your fields lay out. Work your best land and you can make a fairly good crop with an application of only soda or sulphur on the ammonia on the cotton immediately after you chop it. This plan might pay you better in the long run than trying to work your unprofitable lands."

Mr. Talmadge says many fields in a good state of cultivation will make a good crop without application of fertilizer, but believes a larger crop could be realized with its use.

"But don't lose heart because you cannot buy all the fertilizer you wish," he says. "Prepare your land better and work it better. Remember that if you do not buy fertilizer you won't have to pay for it. You will at least save that much."

Mr. Talmadge sees an increase in the interest in dairying in Georgia, but thinks it necessary to raise feed at home if it is to pay. He suggests planting of large feed crops.

$31,000 IN GEMS REPORTED STOLEN IN FLORIDA HOTEL

Hollywood, Fla., March 3.—(P)—Jewelry valued at $31,000 was reported to have been stolen from the room of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Dresser, of Bradford, Pa., in a local hotel shortly before noon today. The theft was reported to the police by Dresser.

Earlier in the day, police had arrested a man known as William Larocca, with a diamond necklace said to belong to Sol Gross, of Brooklyn. The necklace was said to be valued at $1,500. He will be questioned in connection with the Dresser jewel theft, it was said.

The jewelry taken from the Dresser room was insured for $31,000, the owners said.

They listed their losses to include a 6.62 karat diamond set in a ring, a diamond-set wedding ring, a diamond necklace and two bracelets.

Larocca said that the necklace found in his possession had been given him by another man, whose name he did not know, who told him that he had found it and asked Larocca to sell the piece.

Police said that they found in Larocca's room quantities of cash stored in various places, and are investigating the case to see if the amounts of money found corresponds to reports of various thefts from guests in the hotel.

Floridan's Purpose in Unusual Recreation Sought.

Clearwater, Fla., March 3.—(P)—A coroner's jury was deadlocked here today in its efforts to find out why Cornelius Morse, 31, happened to be sitting on the railroad tracks near Belleair last night when he was struck by a train.

Morse died early today. He was struck shortly before 10 p. m., and the train stopped immediately and remained here for an hour while the engineer filed a report of the accident.

He said he did not see the man until after the engine struck him, although the train was traveling at a slow rate of speed.

Morse died in a hospital here without regaining consciousness. He had a fractured skull among other injuries.

Sections of Albany Already
Inundated as Flint
Goes on Rampage.

Albany, Ga., March 3.—(P)—With sections of this city already buried under the waters of the swollen Flint river, and rain still falling at midnight, the crest of the flood which now menaces a wide area of farming land below here was not expected to reach Albany before tomorrow morning, it was said here tonight. Only a slight rise was indicated by the flood gauge below the South Georgia Power company dam here during the six hours between 6 o'clock and midnight, but above the dam the river had increased a foot in depth during the same period.

With six of the dam's eight sluice gates already open, power company officials expressed the belief that it would be necessary to open the other two tonight. This, it was believed, would materially increase the flood stage below the dam.

Tonight the water had flooded the city incinerator to such a depth as to extinguish the fires there. It was within a few feet of the gas plant, which was heavily sandbagged. City Manager Quinten Wright expressed fear that the water would sweep through the sand bags, which he said, "offers serious possibilities."

R. W. Bowsen, weather forecaster, said that the rain had apparently "set in for all night, and that will not be so good for points down river."

The fashionable Springs Country club golf course was under water to the depth of five feet in places, and the club house was surrounded by water.

Small residences on Front street were partially submerged, while a large portion of the Reynolds Lumber company yard where lumber valued at nearly $225,000 was stored, was under water.

Indications were that Newton, 22 miles south of here, where the city had been warned to evacuate, would suffer more heavily than had been expected, should the additional gates of the power company dam be opened.

The flood gauge at 10:30 tonight stood at 29.8 feet, a rise of 3 of a foot in six hours.

2 BURN TO DEATH
AS GASOLINE TANK
TRUCK EXPLODES

Pittsburgh, March 3.—(P)—Two men were burned to death here today when a gasoline tank truck exploded after striking a curb in a downtown thoroughfare. Flaming gasoline, which spread over the street, set fire to two buildings.

The men who perished were riding on the truck. They were William M. McGlaughlin, 45, father of ten children, and John E. O'Brien, 25, the driver, who leaves a widow and one child.

The tank truck careened, overturned and burst into flames and there was a small explosion which scattered burning gasoline to buildings occupied by the Anchor Tire & Battery company and a Gulf Refining company filling station. The structures were damaged to an extent estimated at $30,000. Gasoline at the filling station did not ignite.

The truck, owned by the American Oil company, carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline. O'Brien was thrown from the cab of the truck as it turned over. He was crushed and burned. McGlaughlin also was pinned under the heavy machine.

Police reserves kept back a crowd of thousands. Six firemen suffered slight hurts while combating the fire.

is a member of the staff of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, whose daughter, Florence, he is soon to wed.

Only the governors themselves were at the white house tea in their honor. There was not room for members of their big staffs.

The service at the church permitted Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge to break the bread of communion for the last time with the congregation of which they have been so much a part for eight years. Their first Sunday at the church eight years ago also was a communion service, and the pastor, Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, had arranged the ceremony today to meet the special significance it had due to the departure of the president from Washington.

Hymns dearest to Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, "Crown Him With Many Crowns" and "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," were sung by the choir and the congregation.

Dr. Pierce took for the subject of his sermon "Our Confession." Real confession of faith in Christ is "made by what we are more than by what we say," he said, adding:

"The whole of life is the area of confession rather than the restricted walls of the sanctuary."

There was no reference to the separation so soon to come with the most distinguished member of the congregation; but in the church calendar was a note calling attention to the fact that rarely while in Washington had the president and Mrs. Coolidge missed attendance at services.

Rosa Ponselle Back Stage Is Personification of Calm

BY RALPH T. JONES.

When Rosa Ponselle sings, there is always one person back stage of the Metropolitan Opera company who is at least on the surface, unperturbed. That is Rosa herself.

Directors, conductors, other artists, stage hands and mechanics may fret and fume and believe that everything has gone to sixes and sevens, but the stately Rosa invariably appears as though everything is perfectly all right in the best of all operative worlds.

When her luscious soprano breaks into the opening aria of whatever opera happens to be the program, there is a peculiar spiritual calm that immediately communicates itself to every other individual of the immense organization.

When Rosa sings things automatically work smoothly—as smoothly as the notes that flow from her magic throat.

ANOTHER ROSA.

Atlanta knows Rosa from "out front" at the auditorium. They know her socially and personally and love her universally. But, to a few of us, there is the "back stage" Rosa who is an altogether different—though no less delightful—personality.

It is notable that everyone, from the most famous conductor to the humblest super or stage hand, worships this American girl who has climbed to the highest rung on the vocal ladder of fame.

She is almost entirely free of that bane of opera managers, artistic temperament.

That this is not to be the case next April 22, when Atlanta's twentieth annual season opens with Puccini's "La Rondine," is but the exception that accentuates the rule. And who, with Rosa scheduled to sing "Aida" on Tuesday night and Boris singing on Monday, anyway, Boris, the coloratura, as great in her sphere as Ponselle, the dramatic soprano, is in her.

And Rosa is to sing twice during the coming season anyway. She appears the second time on Thursday night in the title role of "La Gioconda."

HALEY FISKE DIES; SUDDEN HEART ATTACK

New York, March 3.—(P)—Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and a director in many financial and industrial enterprises, died suddenly today, the victim of a heart attack. He was 77 years old.

Mr. Fiske, world-famous apostle of longevity, collapsed as he was about to alight from his automobile in front of his home and his chauffeur noticed that Mr. Fiske's face appeared blanched and a moment later the insurance man fell back to the cushions and was dead before medical aid could be summoned.

Dr. Thomas Wittemore, Mr. Fiske's personal physician, Dr. Thomas Goddard, assistant medical examiner and Dr. Lieberman, of the Reception hospital, who had been called by the chauffeur, arrived almost simultaneously to find that Mr. Fiske was dead.

Mr. Fiske had attended services this morning at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, of which he was a trustee. After the services he asked his chauffeur to drive through Central park because of the spring-like weather.

The drive consumed about an hour and the chauffeur then drove to the Fiske home.

Mr. Fiske was head of the Life Extension institute, which has informed millions of the advances of science in extending the span of human life. In later years he had predicted the time would come when it would be a common thing for men to live to be 100 years old.

In his own life he meticulously adhered to the precepts he advised. He was examined regularly by a physician, the last examination having taken place in January, last, when he was pronounced physically sound.

are cut off by every other means of transportation.

AVIATORS MOBILIZED.

Vera Cruz is about 250 miles by rail from Mexico City. The nearest point to the capital reported to be in the hands of the rebels is Orizaba, which is about 80 miles distant. The stoppage of train service, which was the first indication that an uprising was under way, checked all trains at a point less than half way from Mexico City to the port.

Late tonight the president ordered the commander of the Vallejo army air field used by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and the place that he cracked up last Wednesday in landing to have all aviators ready to fly to the front at a moment's notice.

General Gonzalo Escobar, military commandant of the state of Coahuila also joined the revolt, according to reports. He is another veteran of the internal wars of Mexico and was at one time commander of Ciudad Juarez, across the border from El Paso.

No Bloodshed at Nogales.

The revolutionary movement in Nogales was consummated without bloodshed. Under the leadership of General Manuel Aguirre, brother of General Jesus M. Aguirre, all federal officers in the town were disarmed. They turned over their arms without protest when informed of the rapid spread of the revolt.

General Manuel Aguirre and Governor Topete, in declaring Sonora in revolt against the government of President Gil, acted, they indicated, upon orders from General Francisco Manzo, military chief of the west coast of Mexico. General Manzo is expected at Nogales tomorrow from his military headquarters at Oriz.

The international line gateway between Nogales, Sonora, and Nogales, Arizona, was closed for about ten minutes immediately after the revolutionaries had taken possession of the customs house at 4:55 p. m. The line was reopened again, and residents from the American town poured into Nogales, Sonora, to witness the workings of the "bloodless revolution."

Soldiers Disarmed.

When the revolutionary soldiers under General Manuel Aguirre approached the officers on duty at the federal buildings they asked them quietly, and with little show of force, to hand over their arms.

"We can't do that," many of the federal men answered, apparently not understanding the import of the demand. "We are on duty."

The fact of the revolt was explained to them, and to a man they handed over their guns. No shots were fired anywhere in Nogales.

It was reported here that 14 states, on the border and the west coast chiefly, were included in the revolt. These included Vera Cruz, Chihuahua, Durango, Sonora, Nayarit, Jalisco, Coahuila and Sinaloa. Six other states, revolutionary leaders said, also were revolted but they were unable to name them definitely.

General Francisco R. Manzo, reported to be leading the revolt, is a seasoned fighter who has campaigned throughout the west of Mexico and knows the entire country. In Sonora he long commanded outfits of Yaqui Indians, known as among the fiercest fighters of the world.

Secretary of War Joaquin Amaro, one of whose eyes was removed only a few days ago because of an injury received while playing jail all, got up from his sick bed tonight to take personal direction of the federal campaign.

OVERPRODUCTION IS CALLED CAUSE OF SUGAR CRISIS

Havana, March 3.—(P)—Dr. Henry Arnstein, New York economist and agricultural expert, who is lecturing here at the invitation of the Cuban government, said that overproduction was the foundation of the sugar crisis on the island.

He proposed, in view of the fact that 3,893,750 tons of sugar were exported last year and 117,000 tons consumed by the domestic market, that enough sugar be made to supply these demands, or approximately 4,000,000 tons. The surplus cane, he believed, could be utilized to manufacture commercial alcohol and by-products.

URGES TAX CHANGES

Clearwater, Fla., March 3.—(P)—Asking a number of radical changes from the present system of taxation, the legislative committee of the Florida State Association of Court Clerks has submitted to Governor Carlton its recommendations for alterations of present laws to make them "effective and enforceable."

Changes in the time of year when the tax assessment rolls would be compiled, a substantial allowance for payment of taxes before they become delinquent, elimination of publication of the delinquent tax list or a part of it and reduction of the allowance to tax collectors for holding delinquent sales are among the changes suggested.

Europe Again Rests Calmly As German Admits Forgeries Of Franco-Belgium Treaties

Man of Many Nationalities, Deserter, Internal Alien, Grandson of Poet, Assumes Blame.

GERMAN POLICE SEEK RUSSIAN FORGERS

Brussels, Belgium, March 3.—(AP)—Confession of forgery today effectively quieted the latest war scare along the sensitive Franco-German frontier which had agitated many European ministries for a week. Police declared the arrest of a man here early today had completely cleaned up the episode begun by the publication in a French newspaper of a purported secret military agreement between France and Belgium.

Albert Frank Heine, a man who had changed nationalities like a cloak and has tried his hand at many means of livelihood, was arrested with his wife when he arrived from Amsterdam. He was said to have confessed forging the documents published in the Dutch newspaper, basing them on an old Franco-Russian treaty which long has been dead.

Even before his arrest, the Dutch and German foreign offices had said that they were satisfied that neither France, Belgium nor Britain were plotting against their interests. Denials of any secret agreement were made in behalf of these latter governments.

Fifteen-Year Penalty. Heine, or Frank as he is more commonly known, was said to be a great grandson of the famous poet, Heinrich Heine. His father was Dutch and his mother German. He was said to have deserted from the German navy. He was interested in England until the end of the world war and later found employment as a librarian, teacher, journalist and interpreter. More recently he had been a translator at the German embassy at Brussels.

Conviction on the charge would make him liable to imprisonment for 15 years for plotting against the national security. Police are searching for accomplices.

The cabinet resolved to press action against Frank to establish full responsibility of all concerned in what is officially considered to have been a criminal maneuver against the peace of Europe. The Dutch government was requested to aid. Documents taken from Frank were said to have shown that Belgian malcontents were plotting against Belgium on Dutch territory.

Frank was said to have admitted that the treaty which he had claimed was made between France and Belgium in 1920 was roughly modeled on a treaty concluded long before the world war by France and Czarist Russia.

VATICAN DECREE AGAINST INMATES GETS SIGNATURE

Vatican City, March 3.—(AP)—Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, today signed the decree which notified 457 inmates of the Vatican that they would not be allowed to remain within the confines of the new sovereignty, unless they are acknowledged as papal subjects.

The measure was so sweeping that it even reached Monsignor Giuseppe Pizzardo, under secretary of state, and who, after Cardinal Gasparri, is the highest official living within the Vatican. Evidently the administration of the holy see thought the present a good opportunity to make a clean sweep of many persons who have been living within the apostolic precincts for the reason that their grandfathers or some other ancestors had held some position in the papal administration. Many of them have been quartered in the ancient papal mint. This is a picturesque structure, but because of its rather crowded condition, it had become unhealthy. The quarters are now being evacuated. The greater part of present occupants of the Vatican who are to remain consists of the personnel of the guards. There are 75 Swiss guards, 69 condarmes and 30 firemen in barracks within the Vatican. The noble guards and the palace guards reside outside.

PICTURE SLANDER SUIT CLOSES IN MISTRIAL

Jury, Unable To Agree on
"La Belle Ferronniere," Is Discharged.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Unable to decide whether the painting "La Belle Ferronniere" owned by Mrs. Andrew Hahn, was the work of Leonardo Da Vinci or a copy, a supreme court jury that had been debating the question for 14 hours and 17 minutes reported a disagreement at 5:30 o'clock this morning and was released.

Mrs. Hahn sued Sir Joseph Duveen, British art expert, for $500,000, contending that he committed slander of title when in 1920 he said her painting was not a genuine Da Vinci. This statement, she alleged, prevented sale of the painting to the Kansas City Art Institute for $250,000.

James S. Rowdoin, foreman, said the ballots showed a vote of three for Mrs. Hahn throughout the argument.

Justice Black in his charge pointed out it was essential for the jury to determine whether or not the Hahn painting was genuine and that the burden of proving this rested on the plaintiff. He also declared that if Sir Joseph's statement was false, the jury must believe it was made with malicious intent. The case was given to the jury at 3:13 yesterday afternoon.

The jury which for four weeks had been hearing testimony in the case returned several times for instruction. At 3:30 o'clock they reported inability to reach an agreement but were asked by Justice Black to deliberate a while longer as the trial had cost the county more than $100,000.

S. Lawrence Miller, counsel for Mrs. Hahn, had a 400 to 1 bet that the jury would find in favor of his client. While the jury was deliberating he overheard a bystander offer 500 to 1 that the verdict would be against Mrs. Hahn. He produced an $1 bill and offered to take the bet. The bystander then found he had only $400 and the bet was made at those odds.

During the trial an imposing array of art experts gave opinions on the origin of the picture. Some testified that the work was undoubtedly by Da Vinci, while others had been just as certain that it was nothing more than a copy.

On the stand Sir Joseph was frank in his characterization of Mrs. Hahn's painting. He said the mouth of "La Belle" was "flat as a pancake" and that her hair was "mud" and that the eyebrows were "out of paint, not out of flesh as they do in real life."

On the other hand, Vadim Chernoff, Russian artist, testified that in his opinion the Hahn painting was a genuine Da Vinci and that the work in the Louvre was a copy. He said the Hahn painting evidently had been damaged and rather clumsily retouched and that the copyist who painted the Louvre picture had copied all the bad retouching on the Hahn work.

A deposition by George Soriais, art expert of the department of the Seine, Paris, supported Mrs. Hahn's contention, but Captain R. Langdon Douglas, London art expert, declared he had never heard of Soriais and that there was not the slightest trace of retouching on the Hahn picture.

The jury listened to depositions and testimony from many other experts and also heard X-ray authorities who could not agree as to whether the Hahn painting had been transferred from a wood panel to canvas and then retouched.

When the jury retired it took with it the mounted picture and later called for an X-ray lantern. X-ray photographs of the Hahn and Louvre paintings, evidence concerning doubts alleged to have been expressed in 1921 by Sir Joseph concerning the Louvre painting, an encyclopedia of painting, and a deposition showing the financial resources available in Kansas City for art acquisitions.

PLEA FOR UNITED ZION DRIVE MADE
BY COLONEL KISCH

An eloquent plea that all Jews, both orthodox and reform, combine in the rebuilding of Palestine and the aiding of its people was made by Colonel Frederick H. Kisch, C.B., E.D., S.O., war hero, diplomat and head of the Palestine executive committee of the World Zionist organization, at a reception given in his honor at the ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel Sunday night. More than 300 people, including civic and business leaders, together with both reform and orthodox Jews, attended the reception.

Colonel Kisch painted a vivid picture of conditions in the land that he considers one of the most glamorous of them all, and his every remark brought approval from the large throng that heard him.

Prior to the reception, which was in charge of Samuel Blitz, Colonel Kisch was rendered a dinner by local Jewish leaders, at which time plans for the United Palestine Appeal's $25,000 annual drive to be conducted in Atlanta during April were discussed by Director Blitz.

The following officers for the drive were chosen: J. Saul, chairman; Leopold Hahn, assistant chairman; Rabinowitz, T. Geffin and Harry H. Binstein, honorary vice chairmen; Julian V. Boehm and Mrs. Sam E. Levy, vice chairmen; M. Rich, campaign treasurer; David M. Meyer, secretary, and Louis Isaacson, secretary of the executive board.

The official welcome committee for Colonel Kisch was composed of Rabbis David Marks, Harry H. Epstein and T. Geffin.

Rain To Return To City Today, Says Bureau

Sunday's moderate temperatures and fair skies apparently were mistakes for Atlanta is scheduled to be back in the old order today with a rainy Monday to be followed by a fair and colder Tuesday, or at least so says the seers of the Washington weather bureau.

Sunday's official statistics show that the lowest temperature experienced by the city was 40 degrees while the highpoint was a pleasing 58 degrees. And most pleasant of all, perhaps, was the absolutely negative precipitation.

Egyptians of about 1000 B. C. had pet cats, and some were mummified when they died.

OLDEST CLAY TABLETS OF CHALDEANS FOUND

Discovery Is Key to Earliest
History; Many Tombs Uncovered.

Philadelphia, March 3.—(AP)—Written tablets and clay stoppers bearing the impression of archaic seals, the oldest written documents found at Ur of the Chaldees, have been discovered by the joint archaeological expedition of the University of Pennsylvania museum and the British museum.

News of the discovery was contained in a report from C. Leonard Woolley, director of the expedition, made public today.

In his report, Mr. Woolley said the objects were of the utmost archaeological importance. They belonged, he declared, to a period in Ur's history illustrated heretofore only by crude clay figurines of animals and men.

The report also recorded the excavation of a number of additional graves in the cemetery and the further clearing of the great temple of the moon god Nannar, work on which has been in progress several years.

"The ordinary graves of the Sargoid age of 2700 B. C., in the excavation of which we have just been engaged," said the report, "have produced their accustomed harvest of gold and silver ornaments, stone vases and copper vessels, while the graves of the first dynasty of Ur which are 500 years older and lie lower down in the soil, also were not less rich."

"Much more important, however, was a royal tomb which lay under the rest and which was a single building measuring 42 feet by 25 feet and built throughout of unburned limestone. This tomb is indeed an underground house and this fact should serve to explain why the royal occupants of a tomb were accompanied in death by a retinue of courtiers and domestics. Apparently every provision was made so that a royal personage in death might have surroundings approximating those to which he was accustomed while alive."

"Of the servants and court attendants who were buried in this particular royal grave there remained little but scattered bones, for ages ago robbers had broken the roof of the tomb and had looted it."

Since the introduction of the Packard Six, forerunner of today's Packard Eight, $40,199,000 have been expended for facilities useful in the manufacture and distribution of Packard cars. Because of this huge expenditure incomparably better cars have been developed, step by step, and now are offered for less than half the price of the original Packard Six.

Packard has concentrated its millions and its experience on one name and on one ideal. The public has been most gracious in its support. And as Packard has prospered, it has shared its prosperity with those who buy its cars—giving better cars at constantly lower prices.

These new low prices follow the price reduction announced but a few months ago on Packard's Custom line. They afford the public a more favorable opportunity than ever before to have the many advantages and features found only in Packard cars.

When may we demonstrate these features to you? Your used car will be accepted as cash, and if of average value will more than make the down payment on a new car. Then—a profitable and enjoyable ownership lasting four or five times the payment period, an ownership more advantageous now than at any time during Packard's thirty years of fine car building.

LOVE MANIA KILLER IS GUILTY OF MURDER

Farice King, Nurse, Sane, Jury Holds; Gets Life Sentence.

Denver, March 3.—(AP)—Guilty of murder in the first degree was the verdict returned by a jury today in the case of Farice King, 38-year-old nurse, who shot and killed her former lover, John C. Bohzine, a policeman, in the General Hospital here November 28. The verdict carries a penalty of life imprisonment.

Pale and tired, a haggard shadow of her former self, Miss King collapsed without uttering a word when the verdict was read. She was carried from the court room to her cell in the county jail.

Lewis D. Mowry, chief of defense counsel, asked for 20 days in which to file motion for a new trial. The prosecution accepted and the request was granted by District Judge Frank McDonough.

Death Penalty Unasked.
The defense had held that Miss King was insane at the time of the shooting. The case went to the jury Saturday afternoon following four hours' argument by District Attorney Earl Wetzel; his assistant, Ralph Cummings and Mowry, of the defense. Wetzel, in asking the jury to find Miss King guilty, declared her attitude since the shooting and during the trial was not that of an insane person, but rather the posing of an actress. He did not demand the death penalty.

On the other hand, Mowry pleaded that the defendant had been punished enough during the last 12 years by the "machinations of her victim." He asked that she be returned to her family "to gather anew the strands of a life that had been wrecked through the actions of her betrayer and victim."

The Slaying with Its "Love Element" occurring as it did in a hospital, after the chance meeting of the nurse and her former sweetheart, attracted wide attention.

Unrequited Love.
The story of the nurse and the man she killed opened in 1916, when their friendship, ripened on the part of Miss King—into love. Her love abided after their separation during the war when Evans was in the service; on through his return and through his marriage to another woman.

Continual brooding on this unrequited love over a period of 12 years sent Miss King into a "love mania," her defense alleged, finally serving to unbalance her mind.

For two years the nurse had not seen Evans until he was in a gun fight during a liquor raid. He was brought into the hospital and placed in the ward devoted to freemen and policemen, in a room across the hall from a patient Miss King was nursing.

Mutual recognition led to the renewal of the friendship of the nurse and the policeman. Then, according to Miss King's story, the officer to whom she had confessed her love, taunted her with the statement that "happiness and future are not for you."

She retired to another room, her statement, made to alienists at the time, pronounced her sane, declared, and took a revolver from her purse. Standing before a mirror she placed the pistol to her breast, in an attempt to commit suicide. What happened after that, she said, is blank in her mind.

The prosecution claimed that the nurse returned to the sick room, shot Evans twice, probably in his sleep, killing him instantly, and then turned the gun upon herself, sending a bullet through her body and inflicting a wound which for days was expected to prove fatal.

RICHMOND COUNTY TREASURER GIVES UP TO SHERIFF

Augusta, March 3.—(AP)—Walter Clark, county treasurer sought for embezzlement of funds, returned to Augusta today and surrendered to the sheriff of Richmond county, Clark would not talk to reporters, nor would he say where he had been since Friday.

The county commissioner would not state whether Clark was short or not, stating that no report had been made to them as yet by the auditors. Clark was placed under a $10,000 bond and released.

Georgia Streams To Get 350,000 Trout From State Fish Hatchery

Preparations Made at Newly-Created Hatchery at Summerville for Dis- tribution.

BY JOHN CROUCH.
Mar. 3, Ga., March 3.—(Special.) C. C. James, deputy state game warden and superintendent of the newly created state fish hatchery at Summerville, is authority for the statement that within the next few weeks 350,000 rainbow and mountain trout would be placed in north Georgia streams as part of the department of fish and game's program to replenish the mountain streams with fish.

Already, it was stated, about 300,000 rainbow and mountain trout are swimming vigorously about in specially provided troughs awaiting the time when greater freedom will be allowed them.

The fish were hatched in the new hatchery, and since this was the first venture of the state department along these lines, keen gratification at the success has been expressed.

Mr. James stated that the activities of the new hatchery will not be restricted to raising mountain trout alone, but will include raising brim, crappie and other species specially adapted to north Georgia streams.

The hatchery was completed several weeks ago and is the first of its kind in the state; that is, to be operated by the state. The main building consists of a spacious room containing 18 troughs through which water, brought from a nearby spring, flows continuously. The eggs, each the size of a small-sized English pea, are placed on wire screens and they in turn placed in the troughs.

When the eggs begin hatching, one may observe a violent spinning around, and a semi-transparent substance, resembling somewhat a tadpole, emerges from the eggs. This hair-like body is the fish itself, and for some time it retains to its body a portion of the egg from which it has emerged.

Mr. James explained that the fish receives sustenance from the eggs until it becomes nearly "fingerling" size when feeding becomes necessary. Beef heart and liver are then fed to the fingerling fish. When the fish become full, fingerling size, they are ready to be released, Mr. James stated.

"Although the plans of the state department of game and fish were originally to provide the mountain streams with trout, so many demands have been made upon the department that Mr. Twitty, commissioner, has decided to increase the facilities at the Summerville hatchery to hatching other species as well," said Mr. James, "and now crappie, as well as brim, will be hatched and released to north Georgia streams."

ALLEGED BURGLAR BELIEVED WOUNDED BY HOUSEHOLDER

An early morning marauder who shortly after midnight Sunday attempted to enter the home of H. A. Ewing, at 111 Wellington street, was made the target for a volley of bullets from Mr. Ewing's gun and was believed to have been wounded.

Ewing reported to Chief Officers Wright and Norton that he was aroused by sounds at the rear of his home and looking out saw a figure attempting to enter the door, apparently attempting to force it. Procuring his pistol he fired four shots at the shadowy form and was rewarded by hearing the would-be robber utter a piercing shriek and run swiftly from the premises. A short iron bar the thief had been using on the door was found by Ewing.

Sunday Blaze

Several hundreds of dollars damage was done Sunday afternoon by a fire of undetermined origin which originated in the rear of the Guarantee Suit and Clothing company, at 42 Deatur street. The fire had progressed considerably before firemen were summoned and the loss was added to by water damaged to the stock.

Top photo shows mammoth spring which supplies the newly-built state fish hatchery at Summerville with water. Soon some 350,000 rainbow and mountain trout are to be released for north Georgia streams. Lower photo shows Peter S. Twitty, left, and C. C. James, superintendent of fish hatchery, standing in front of the newly-erected state hatchery at Summerville.

Two Famous Old Paintings Discovered in Atlanta

CRITIC ENTHUSIASTIC OF CANVASES HERE

BY RALPH T. JONES.
Professor Adolf Werbik, the distinguished museum conservator and restorer of old masters, who has been in Atlanta visiting for the past ten days or so, and who is to be here for a few days longer at the Biltmore hotel, discovered at least two genuinely valuable paintings by famous old masters in Atlanta homes.

It is Professor Werbik's profession—and likewise his delight—to find and restore those occasional worthy old pictures that are to be found in museums and private homes all over the country. He stated that he had been particularly fortunate in Atlanta, because he had found at least two paintings that were genuine old masters. Also, he remarked Sunday.

he had enjoyed immensely examining the works of "two modern masters" on view at the High Museum of Art. "It was with undivided admiration," said Professor Werbik, "that I viewed, at the High museum, a noble visitor, the illustrious member of American landscape painters, Mr. Hennings. It is too late to write a criticism of his work, and it is a pity. But he had to leave Atlanta without finding a single purchasing friend. It is a great pity."

Great Modern.
"But I found another great modern American, C. F. Carlson. His exhibition at the High museum is glorious. He depicts nature at winter time and he is a great master at the art of rendering winter on the canvas."

Professor Werbik then listed some of the finest of Mr. Carlson's paintings—a dozen or more—that are now on exhibition at the museum.

The Austrian critic turned, then, however, from the moderns he had enjoyed in Atlanta to enthuse over a couple of old canvases he had discovered.

A Van Der Helst.
At the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bates Block, he said, he had found a very fine painting by Bartholomew van der Helst, who died in 1670. This great Dutch master was one of the leaders of his school and it is remarkable thing to find one of the finest examples of his work owned in Atlanta.

The painting in the Block home is 18 1/2 by 25 inches in size. It represents a gathering of ten persons, in sociable attitude, chaperoned by the most ancient and faithful friend of man—a dog.

It is painted on an oak panel and, says Professor Werbik, is a really wonderful piece of work.

It was almost by accident that the second Atlanta old-master discovery was made.

A Mattheis.
"I was called," said Professor Werbik, "to the home of Mr. Hans T. Pause, to see a Peter Paul Rubens. But instead I found the picture to be truly a genuine Paolo deMatteis (sometimes called Mattheis). Mattheis was a Neapolitan painter of the seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries. He was born in 1662 and died in 1728. He was the most celebrated pupil of Luca Giordano."

"The painting in Atlanta represents 'Cimon and Pera,' the famous act of filial piety in which a daughter nourishes a parent condemned to death by hunger. It is a very fine example of Paolo deMatteis' brushwork."

Professor Werbik is well satisfied with his Atlanta visit. To discover two worthwhile paintings in ten days is a record of which he boasts. And, inasmuch as he expects to be at the

Hoover Gathers New Cabinet At Luncheon as Coolidge's Advisors Tell Chief Good-Bye

Stimson Is Only Member Absent From First Unofficial Meeting of Advisory Body.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—On the eve of their induction into office the members of the Hoover cabinet gathered today around the hospitable table of their chief to greet one another and exchange pleasantries as friends—the next gathering will be as high officials of the nation.

President Coolidge's cabinet members, on the other hand, mostly were making preparations to vacate their offices and leave Washington. Last night they gathered for the last time as dinner guests of Mr. Coolidge in the white house.

Henry L. Stimson, Mr. Hoover's secretary of state, was the only member of his official family absent from Washington. Although he already has left Manila, where for over a year he has been administering the Philippines, he will not land in San Francisco until March 20. All the other new cabinet appointees were on hand today. Their names will be passed on by the senate in special session tomorrow for ratification and Mr. Hoover already has indicated that he will call them for his first cabinet meeting on Tuesday. The oath of office probably will be administered Tuesday morning.

Wide Variety of Men.
Most of Mr. Hoover's luncheon guests today were already acquainted with each other and all knew of each other's reputation. Few, however, were close friends. Supplementing with personal intimacy the close working relations which will be theirs in the next years.

Andrew W. Mellon and James J. Davis, the only two members of the new cabinet to serve in the old, were the veterans of today's gathering. Charles Francis Adams, Arthur M. Hyde, and Robert P. Lamont are newcomers to official life in Washington, while Ray Lyman Wilbur has served here only during the war as chief of the conservation division of the food administration. Stimson's experience in administration, office dates back as far as 1911 as secretary of war.

A wide variety of future activities faced the retiring members of Mr. Coolidge's cabinet. Secretary Kellogg will remain in office as head of the foreign department until his successor can reach the capital, probably about April 1.

Davis to Go to Europe.
On leaving office Mr. Kellogg, after a protracted vacation, will go back to St. Paul and to the practice of law. Attorney General Sargent, after serving in the highest legal position in the country, proposes to return to the big red brick house in Ludlow, within easy reach of the plentiful trout streams of Vermont.

A diplomatic period in Europe is predicted for Secretary Davis of the war department. The former's problem still will remain Secretary Jardine's chief preoccupation after leaving office. As soon as possible he will take up duties here as counsel for the Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers.

Secretary Wilbur, of the navy department, brother of the next interior secretary, probably will return to the bench. One of Mr. Coolidge's last official acts was to nominate him for a federal judgeship in the Pacific coast area.

Secretaries West and Whiting, of the interior and commerce departments, are expected to return to Chicago and Holyoke, Mass., respectively, to take up again their private affairs. Mr. West is a lawyer and Mr. Whiting a paper manufacturer.

It was said today that Postmaster General News's chief occupation immediately on leaving office will be to catch up on his hunting and fishing.

Served a colonel of artillery in France during world war. Selected by President Coolidge in 1927 to settle the Nicaraguan row and forced both sides to stop fighting and disarm pending an American-supervised presidential election. Appointed by President Coolidge as governor general of the Philippines, where serving when called by Hoover to his second cabinet post.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of treasury; born in Pittsburgh, educated at University of Pittsburgh; early became banker and amassed fortune variously estimated to be the second or third largest in United States. Officer and director in various financial and industrial corporations and engaged in development coal, coke and iron enterprises before serving his connections at the age of 67 to embark upon first public service, that as treasury secretary under President Harding. During his administration reduced public debt and taxes, and refunded ten billions of war debts. Probably serve longer as treasury secretary than any other man.

James W. Good, secretary of war; born Cedar Rapids, Iowa; educated at Yale; after brief practice law became city attorney home town in 1906. After two years' service elected to house of representatives, serving from 1909 to 1923, when tried of public life and returned to practice law in Chicago. While there became chairman appropriations committee and had large hand in putting through budget legislation. During Hoover campaign was chief of the western headquarters.

William D. Mitchell, attorney general; born in Winona, Wis.; educated at Sheffield Scientific school, Yale and University of Minnesota. Began practice of law at St. Paul, 1896, and four years later secretary of first railroad commission of that city. Regional counsel, railroad administration 1919 and chairman of citizens' charter commission St. Paul, 1922. Appointed solicitor general, 1925. Veteran both Spanish-American and world wars.

Walter F. Brown, postmaster general; born in Madison, Ohio; educated at Harvard and began practice of law at Toledo in 1894. As early as 1906 was chairman Ohio republican state central committee and held that office until he came to Washington in 1912. Later President Harding relied strongly upon him in 1920 Chicago convention and offered him several important posts, all of which he declined, although did accept chairmanship of committee on reorganization of government departments. Appointed assistant secretary of commerce under Herbert Hoover which job he now holds.

Charles Francis Adams, secretary of navy; born Quincy, Mass.; educated at Harvard; began practice of law at Boston in 1894. Father John Adams, second president United States; grandfather Charles Francis Adams, ambassador court of St. James, London, 1898-1902. Harvard; director scores of corporations; leading amateur yachtsman of country, having sailed Resolute to Boston from Shanghai, N. Y. in 1920. Member Quaker city council 1893 to 1895; mayor Quincy, 1897 to 1899.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of interior; born Boonesboro, Iowa; educated at California, Germany and England. After lecturing on physiology at several American colleges became dean of medical school at alma mater, Stanford, in 1911, and president, 1916. During war was chief of conservation division of food administration. Was student at Stanford with President-elect Hoover who, as upper classman, solicited laundry from Wilbur in order help pay way through college.

Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture; born Princeton, Mo.; educated at University of Michigan and State University, Iowa. Began practice of law at Princeton in 1900 and mayor of that town for two years from 1908. Moved to Trenton in 1915. Elected governor of Missouri for four-year term beginning in 1921.

Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce; born Detroit; educated University Michigan; maintaining degree as civil engineer; engineer at Chicago exposition, then with large contracting firm; successfully with Simplex Railway Appliance company and American Steel Foundries company, of which now president. Became affiliated with number banks and large corporations Chicago and other cities, and also prominent in many associations of business men.

James J. Davis, secretary of labor; born Tredegar, Wales; came to United States with parents, 1881; began as puddler's assistant in iron works at Sharon, Pa.; was puddler at 16; moved to Elwood, Ind., where became city clerk, and later recorder Madison County, Ind. Became director general Loyal Order Moose in 1906, and appointed secretary of labor by President Harding in 1921. A founder of Monsehart (Ill.) home and school.

Parade Will Be Colorful.
In fact, the parade will have all the color and noise and features of a circus parade and then some, including a live elephant, which the Union League club, of Philadelphia, is reported bringing here for the ceremony.

High above the avenue the aerial parade of 35 aircraft—30 airplanes, the navy dirigible, Los Angeles, and four blimps—will roar its welcome to the new president and dip noisily in salute over the white house.

No details, which might retard the smooth movement of either the land or air parades, have been overlooked. Final meetings were held today, plans were completed and all arrangements made to assure complete synchronization of all participating units.

to force that body to recess until 11 a. m. tomorrow—or only an hour before, under constitutional mandate, the life of the congress will expire.

Senate's Session Short.
The senate was in session only 30 minutes and both friends and foes of the measure tonight admitted that, except for a miracle, there was no chance of its receiving senate approval.
The attempt to press the bill through was initiated in the senate by Gerald P. Nye, a North Dakota republican, but encountered strong opposition.

As a clerk neared the end of the roll call the packed galleries were treated to one of the senate's tense moments when Nye, anticipating defeat, changed his vote from "no" to "aye" in order to move a reconsideration but Vice President Dawes ruled the senate had voted to recess and refused to permit another ballot.

House Adopts Bill.
In the house the bill adopted by a vote of 190 to 153 at the end of an hour's discussion. The measure had been called up and its approval urged by Chairman Johnson, of the immigration committee. It was opposed by Representative Finis J. Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader.

Garrett said he not only was opposed to the measure but also regarded it as a useless waste of time for the house to enact the bill in view of the situation in the senate. The session was one of confusion. Three times the clerk was forced to stop the roll call while Speaker Longworth pounded for order.

Once the speaker admonished the galleries. He said it was apparent that a part of the confusion was caused by the spectators.
On the floor itself members were moving about, shaking hands, bidding one another good-bye and generally enjoying themselves. A number of senators, after that body had recessed, also entered the house chamber while the crowd was swelled by the presence of many of the new house members who will sit in the next congress. During the meeting Bertrand H.

Snell, of New York, chairman of the powerful rules committee, spoke for a few minutes in praise of Mr. Garrett, saying his retirement would be a loss to the state of Tennessee, the congress and to the country as a whole.

"We need men of his type in the American congress," he said amid applause from both democrats and republicans.

Garrett was absent from the chamber at the time but returned a few minutes later and thanked the New Yorker for his words of praise.
After transacting some minor business the house recessed until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

CURTIS AND DAWES IMPOSING FIGURES
BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—Charles Curtis and Charles Dawes were holding a spotlight all their own today as Washington looked forward with some anticipation to the vice presidential inaugural tomorrow.

Four years ago the impetuous General Dawes, of the American expeditionary forces in France, gave officialdom a shock with an explosive assault on the senate's ancient and self-esteemed rules. He wanted to limit senate debate.

Tomorrow, the past master of those rules, Charles Curtis, retiring leader of the senate and for years the chairman of its rules committee, takes over the vice presidential crown.

Holds Public Interest.
Will Dawes go out as he came in and again expostulate on those almost sacred rules? Will Curtis answer him? Washington wondered tonight, and tomorrow at noon, before the president, the president-elect, the supreme court, the members of congress and the diplomatic corps in the chamber of the senate, the answer will come.

And thus the vice presidential inaugural—almost routine in the past—has been lifted this year to a pedestal not far below that occupied by Herbert Hoover and Calvin Coolidge in the full sunshine of America's interest.

Equally distinguished Americans, Charles Dawes, the business man, and Charles Curtis, the veteran legislator, offer a study of contrasts in their attitudes on the intricacies of legislative procedure.

Assured yesterday in bountiful measure of the esteem of the senate which totally ignored his plea for modification of the rules, Mr. Dawes was ready tonight to depart official life. He goes back to Chicago to resume his former office of chairman of the board of the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

Curtis in Congress 34 Years.
But in a few days the man who was called by Europe to solve its vexing German reparations problem will answer a new call—from Santo Domingo. Mr. Dawes will head a commission of American financial experts to revise the fiscal organization of that government.

Republicans and democrats spoke their praise to the smiling, outspoken vice president yesterday in the senate. Last night the Gridiron club, a newspapermen's organization, did the unusual of having Mr. Dawes as its lone guest.

With the same quiet, unassuming manner in which he guided his party through the perilous days of the last congress, complicated by almost equal division of the parties, Charles Curtis last night left the chamber.

Tired, but happy, 34 years of congressional service behind him, Curtis slipped out of the chamber almost unnoticed a few minutes after the senate had concluded the program he had planned for the session.

Tomorrow he ascends to the vice presidency, and his friends have stated that perhaps no man ever was qualified more thoroughly to preside over the senate. For 20 years the Kansan has served in the senate, rising four years ago to leadership of his party—the majority party. For many years he has been chairman of the rules committee, and it now will become one of his duties to interpret and apply those rules.

his secretaries, and then dressed for church.
Mr. and Mrs. Hoover appeared at 10:45 a. m. walking rapidly down the steps and entering an automobile. The next president smiled in response to salutes of guarding police officers. The president had on his familiar gray fedora hat—it looked like a brand new one—a dark grey overcoat, black shoes and a grey suit with a single-breasted coat.

Mrs. Hoover was wrapped in a seal-skin coat with a collar of fur, with a tight-fitting velvet turban on her head and wore black suede shoes. Mr. Hoover's sister, Mrs. Mary Leavitt, of Long Beach, Calif., entered the automobile with her.

Other members of the family—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., Allan Hoover and little Delano Large entered a second car for the drive to the church.

The service was of extreme simplicity and only once was there even a reference to the next chief executive in the congregation. This was in a prayer by Esther Morton Smith, of Philadelphia, who asked divine guidance "for one of us upon whom his fellow countrymen have placed a heavy burden."

The services were conducted by Augustus Murray, a Quaker minister from Mr. Hoover's home town of Palo Alto, who was invited to make the trip across the continent for the purpose. He spoke only briefly, taking as his text the declaration of St. Paul in one of his last letters: "For God hath not given unto us a spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind."

LONG'S WILD PARTY VERY TAME, DANZIGER

New Orleans Man Comes to Governor's Defense Against Drink Charge.

New Orleans, March 3.—(P)—Charges published in the New Orleans States that Governor Huey P. Long had participated in a drinking and dancing party the night of a recent gambling raid by national guardsmen were characterized in a statement tonight by A. D. Danziger, president of the New Orleans Association of Commerce, as "largely figments of the imagination."

Under a front page streamer, "Girls Tell of Studio Party," the States, owned by Colonel Robert Ewing, democratic national committeeman, charged that Governor Long issued orders to the troops for the gambling raids while he was making merry in a studio as the guest of Mr. Danziger. It printed two affidavits from cabaret girls who said they were hired to entertain the party.

"Merely Conference." Mr. Danziger's statement follows: "The statements appearing in the Sunday States are largely figments of the imagination. The facts are as set forth in my previous statement and can be established at the proper time by several of my reputable and responsible men as there are in the city of New Orleans."

"Other papers had similar statements tendered them alleged to have come on February 22 from two entertainers, but the States was the first New Orleans journal which printed such stuff."

"I reiterate that it was during an official conference between him, as governor of the state, and myself, as president of the Association of Commerce, that I extended an invitation to Governor Long to attend a birthday dinner party at the Jung hotel on the day after mardi gras. There were in attendance during the entire evening both at the hotel and at my place in the French quarter, ladies and gentlemen whose standing and reputation are above reproach or question and whose very presence would be sufficient assurance to any fair-minded person that nothing occurred which could not have taken place at any other theater in New Orleans or at the office of the States."

"Let Colonel Ewing pursue his controversy with the governor to his heart's content but whenever and wherever the events of February 13 are incorrectly or improperly stated in order to level unjust criticism either at the governor or any of my other guests I shall feel in duty bound to deny such erroneous and misleading statements."

Coolidge Breaks Long Precedent By Departing From White House With Visage Wreathed in Smiles

BY CHARLES P. STEWART,
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Constitution.

Washington, March 3.—Calvin Coolidge leaves the white house with a triumphant toot of trumpets. This is something no other president has done in a long time.

Even had Warren G. Harding lived, his term could hardly have ended happily. Woodrow Wilson retired a physical wreck and crushed by disappointment. William Howard Taft was a good loser—but he needed to be after the thumping defeat which terminated his presidential tenure. Theodore Roosevelt departed so regretfully that he tried to leave the door ajar for his return—only to have it slammed after him. William McKinley did not live to become an exception. Grover Cleveland closed his second administration with the political roof falling on his head. Harrison was beaten for reelection; Arthur for renomination, which he wanted; like McKinley, Garfield died tragically; Hayes' whole term was clouded.

In a half century, at least, until Calvin Coolidge's day, not a retiring president has descended the white house steps in as high spirits as at hour he ascended them.

In Good Spirits. From all appearances Mr. Coolidge not only is in as good spirits as ever he was, but decidedly better.

He leaves because he chose to do so. In office, he accomplished what he set out to accomplish.

He turns over to his successor the leadership of a party which his own leadership has strengthened. His personal political credit stands at a high level.

His health is robust. He is not yet old.

With the presidency of the United States to start from, in a sense he is on the threshold of a career, rather than at the end of one.

Life lies before him.

Is it any wonder that Mr. Coolidge looks cheerful? He faces the future with decided advantages in his favor.

Change Comes. Few persons who have been in close contact with Calvin Coolidge from the time of his induction into office until the last days of his administration have failed to remark upon the change which has come over him.

Yet there is reason to believe that the real Mr. Coolidge is the Mr. Coolidge of today; not the Mr. Coolidge of the latter half of 1923, and of 1924, and of the entire subsequent period up until the date of that celebrated "do not choose" utterance of It was directly following that ut-his, toward the end of his Black Hills vacation in 1927.

terrence that the change in him began to be noticed. However, it was gradual for a good while. Not until January or early February, 1929, can Mr. Coolidge really be said to have complete his transformation.

Or was it, in fact, no change at all? Was it simply a reversion to the original Mr. Coolidge?

What a president was like before he became president generally is forgotten, with surprising thoroughness, very soon after he moves into the white house.

His surroundings invest him with a new and artificial personality, and his previous one does not even seem to be remembered.

The former Mr. Hoover already is a rather vague reminiscence.

Consequently, it is difficult to find anyone who recalls much of Vice President Coolidge.

Nevertheless, a few old-timers do recollect that he was not considered an especially glum presiding officer of the senate. I have met still older acquaintances of the retiring chief magistrate—neighbors who knew him during the by-gone days at Northampton—who appeared surprised by references to his white house taciturnity.

Depressing Start. Mr. Coolidge took over the presidency at an hour of national mourning. His predecessor's death was speedily followed by serious trouble, involving members of the official family he had inherited. He lost a son early in the administration. His nomination in 1924 was exceedingly unpopular with many of his own party leaders. His father died.

Doubtless he was depressed. Mr. Coolidge is not the man to discuss his griefs and anxieties, but he reflects them in his visage and manner.

He has not an angry temper, but he can be crabbed.

His face, in repose, is as bleak as the rockbound coast of New England. By the time he was fairly settled in the executive mansion, he had had his salient characteristics sketched out for him—by others—as they saw him just then—and it was this picture which was nationally accepted as the living image of Calvin Coolidge—no more to be tampered with than George Washington's portrait on a silver certificate.

It was not an unfaithful portrait of the dour-faced Mr. Coolidge who rode in the inaugural procession four years ago.

It is not much more like the general Mr. Coolidge of today than Mr. Hoover is like him. They have the same general complement of features but very little else in common.

Yet I question the theory that the presidency has changed Mr. Coolidge, fundamentally. Upon his retirement, I believe the white house is returning its original citizen to Northampton.

FORMER WAR FLIER AND STUDENT PILOT KILLED IN CRASH

Newark, N. J., March 3.—(P)—A. Peyton Schuck, a former war flier, and Joseph W. Imbrico, a student pilot, were killed today in the crash of a Waco biplane in a marsh near the Metropolitan airport here.

The plane nose-dived from an altitude of about 200 feet, spectators said, and struck the ground a mile northeast of the landing field. The engine was buried deep in the mud in a shallow pool and the two men were suffocated. The fuselage and wings were broken and spread over the surface of the pool.

SANDINO'S WIFE BEING WATCHED BY NICARAGUANS

Managua, Nicaragua, March 3.—(P)—Mrs. Augusto Sandino, wife of the Nicaraguan rebel leader, has been brought to Managua from San Rafael Del Norte where until a few months ago she was a telegraph operator.

She has been under surveillance ever since her husband actively participated in the rebellion nearly two years ago, but in order to watch her actions more closely the Nicaraguan government decided to bring her to Managua, where she is living at a hotel.

Recently American marine officers and Nicaraguan officials suspected she furnished information to the rebels regarding troop movements.

The weather man again smiled on the poplars Sunday and as a result the Candler field pilots had the best flying weather which has fallen to them for many weeks. The usual large crowd was on hand to watch or take part in the festivities.

Jesse Exum, local aerialist whose forte is sliding off into space hitched to a big piece of cloth, did his usual Sunday afternoon leap and proved his adeptness by lighting on the field from a height of 2,500 feet and keeping his feet in the bargain.

The only aerial visitor at the field Sunday was an auy flyer, who stopped over on a little jaunt from Maxwell field at Montgomery. He was flying a heavy transport ship and did quite a little cavorting around for the benefit of the spectators.

The old Mahomet-mountain bromide is recalled by a bit of work now being done at Candler field. Some weeks ago a big Fokker super-universal, owned by the Gulf Airlines and used in the New Orleans passenger service, suffered an accident.

Negro Is Killed Rushing Injured Friend to Grady

One negro was killed and three others were hurt Sunday night when their automobile failed to make a sharp turn on Decatur street and crashed into a telephone post while they were rushing another negro to Grady hospital to be treated for bullet wounds.

Henry Walker, driver of the car, was instantly killed, and the car was completely demolished when it struck the post at Decatur and Pratt streets. He was carrying Ernest Asbury, of 102 Fort street to Grady hospital after he had been shot by a negro, said to be "Chump" Roby, of 31-A Haynes street, with a shotgun at his home. Jimmy Jenkins and a negro known to the others only as "East-man" also were injured.

Roby was arrested some hours after the accident as he passed Patrolman H. D. Waters, carrying the shotgun with which he is alleged to have shot Asbury. According to Officer Waters, Roby when asked if he shot the wounded man said, "If he's shot, I shot him, 'cause I sure fired right at him."

Georgians Attend Coolidge Reception for Governors

JOHN B. WILSON REPRESENTS HARDMAN

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Washington, D. C., March 3.—Acting in the capacity of personal representative of Governor L. G. Hardman, of Georgia, John B. Wilson, secretary to the state executive, accompanied by Mrs. Hardman and members of the governor's official staff, attended a formal reception at the white house this afternoon. The reception was given by President and Mrs. Coolidge in honor of the visiting governors here to participate in the inauguration tomorrow of President-elect Hoover.

Late this afternoon the official Georgia party attended a second reception arranged by the Washington inaugural committee for the various state executives and members of their staffs. The second pre-inaugural social event was held at the Willard hotel, and was attended by an imposing list of administration officials, including cabinet members, senators and congressmen and others.

Georgia Cars in Parade.

While Governor Hardman was unable to join in the inaugural ceremonies, due to recent illness, he will be represented both at the capital, where the oath of office will be administered to the president-elect and at the parade down Pennsylvania avenue to the white house. Special provision has been made in the inaugural parade for Georgia cars to be occu-panied by Mrs. Hardman, Mr. Wilson, Adjutant General Homer C. Parker and other military aides of the Georgia governor.

The official Georgia party which arrived in Washington yesterday, plans to remain in the city throughout Tuesday. Following the ceremonies at the capital at noon they will attend the inaugural ball to be held Monday night in the Washington auditorium. Other functions are being arranged in their behalf, members of the Georgia congressional delegation and the Georgia society of the national capital.

Many Georgians Present.

In addition to those mentioned above the official party here included Mrs. Homer C. Parker, wife of the state adjutant general; Miss Sue Colquhoun, Hardman's daughter; and Mrs. L. B. Joel, of Atlanta; Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Platan, of Athens; Lieutenant Colonel Stewart D. Brown and Miss Mary Stewart; and Mrs. J. B. Joel, of Atlanta; Lieutenant Colonel Edgar L. Roberts, of Atlanta; Lieutenant Colonel Nathan M. McLeod, Miss Mildred McLeod, and Miss Jane McLeod, of Rome, and Lieutenant Colonel R. Holmes Mason, of Macon.

Aside from the official party, a number of other Georgians are in Washington to witness the incoming president take the oath of office. These include members of the republican organization in the state, such as the Georgia National Committee, J. T. Rose, of Atlanta; Republican National Committee M. O. Dunning, of Savannah; G. F. Landers, of Swainsboro, and several others.

FOX BUYS BIG BLOCK OF STOCK IN LOEW COMPANY

New York, March 3.—(AP)—William Fox, president of Fox Theaters corporation, today announced by the corporation of a "substantial block" of the common stock of Loew's incorporated. The stock was acquired from the widow and family of the late Marcus Loew and its acquisition was said to make the affiliated companies the largest operators of motion picture theaters and companies in the country.

Gross assets of Fox Theaters and Loew's, Inc., were over $137,000,000 as of December 31, 1928, and Fox Films corporation had gross assets of that date of over $36,000,000, according to the Film Daily's year book.

The Fox Theater corporation controls about 65 theaters. Loew's, Inc., owns and operates about 175 to 200 motion picture and vaudeville theaters and in addition controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures corporation, one of the larger motion picture companies, but said the films corporation was not involved in the transaction announced today.

Mr. Fox declined to say whether the purchase of the stock of the Loew heirs and those of a group "intimately associated with them" gave him control of the company, but since Mr. Loew was majority stockholder in the company which bore his name it is believed Mr. Fox probably

50 BARGES FOR INLAND WATERWAYS PLANNED

Washington, March 3.—(AP)—A general policy for the future development of the inland waterways corporation, the government-owned company, was announced today by Secretary Mellon.

The secretary has applied to Secretary Mellon for $2,500,000 to cover the government's subscription for capital stock in the corporation as authorized in the war department appropriation bill.

The policy approved by Secretary Davis calls for the immediate expenditure of approximately $2,500,000 for the purchase of about 50 standard type barges capable of successful operation either on channels of six or ten feet depth, having a capacity of 1,000 tons on six-foot channels and a little over 2,000 tons on nine-foot channels.

HYDE HAPPY CHOICE FOR FARMING POST

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, March 3.—The appropriateness of ex-Governor Hyde, of Missouri, for secretary of agriculture should be interpreted in relation to what the new administration is going to do about agriculture. The program of the new administration and the special session of congress is universally described as being mainly one of creating great farm cooperative associations and organizing the marketing of farm crops. So far as this statement goes it is correct, though, in fact, there will be much more to the program.

If ex-Governor Hyde's aptitude for secretary of agriculture be judged by his ability to organize cooperatives and organize the processes of marketing, in that event he might not be the best possible choice. If, on the other hand, the necessary skill in organization. At the same time it is obviously possible that for a purely organizing and marketing job, search might readily have been made among men having no experience as farmers and no experience in public life. It is quite possible that some railroad man, or head of a great industrial corporation, might be the best possible man for the job of organizing the farmers into great cooperative associations and setting up channels for the flow of crops to consumers. If for the better men might be found among bankers or business men, the answer is that in practice it was impossible to take the secretary of agriculture from such quarters.

Result of Careful Search.

There is such a thing as a tyranny of terminology or a taboo of terminology, whichever way one looks at it. Because of the compulsion of the word, if nothing else, a secretary of agriculture must have some identity with farming and must come from a farming territory. Of course, it is true that nobody except a "dirt farmer" is capable of doing anything for agriculture as an industry. With the field thus limited, ex-Governor Hyde was the result of a minute and careful search to find the best possible man.

If all this so far seems a little like explaining the Hyde appointment, it is not, in fact, the intention. Ex-Governor Hyde's appropriateness will be better realized if it is understood that what is about to be done about farming goes much farther than cooperative associations and marketing. The farm problem is as man-made as an octopus, and must be attacked from as many different sides. For example, excessive local taxation on land is one of the chief burdens of agriculture. The remedy lies in the states and not in the nation.

Nevertheless, the secretary of agriculture should be a man who understands local taxation and who can promote that form of farm relief. This is but one of many illustrations of the fact that a well equipped secretary of agriculture under present conditions should have many capacities in addition to those of organizing cooperative associations and marketing.

Admirable Appointee.

Judged by this multiple test, ex-Governor Hyde becomes an admirable appointee. He has been the able governor of a state in which, in spite of its two large cities, agriculture is the one great industry. He comes from the corn belt, in which territory the principal farm problem is. He has in the past taken a strong public position sympathetic to farm relief. This assures him the confidence of farmers and the confidence of farmers will be indispensable to a man who is expected in a degree to bring about a revolution in agriculture. An additional equipment possessed by Mr. Hyde is persuasiveness of personality, expressed in eloquence and otherwise.

It is a curious fact that of the men urged for this post, the largest single group were editors of farm papers, of whom at least five were publicly mentioned during the period when Mr. Hoover was making the search that resulted in Mr. Hyde. What meaning may attach to this fact is not clear. Mr. Hyde's immediate predecessor, Jardine, was a teacher and president in an agricultural college in Kansas. Before that, was Henry Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer. Before that was Edwin T. Meredith, editor of a farm paper at Des Moines, Iowa.

Tennessee Law Ruins State's Gretna Green

Bristol, Tenn., March 3.—(United News.)—The Tennessee law that goes in effect July 1 will have a marked reaction among engaged couples that live in Virginia, near here.

For years, eloping couples of the Old Dominion have come here to be married, giving Bristol a reputation as a Gretna Green. The new law provides that persons under 21 must apply for their marriage license five days before the ceremony.

Mr. Garrett will become a judge of the court of customs appeals. The other guests were Representatives Fort, of New Jersey; Williams, of Illinois; Purnell, of Indiana; Michigan; of Michigan; Ransley, of Pennsylvania; and Martin, of Massachusetts, republicans, and Lou, of North Carolina; Bankhead, of Alabama, and O'Connor, of New York, democrats.

LINDBERGH AND ANNE GIVE REPORTERS SLIP

Employ Simple Ruse of Staying in House and Taking Auto Ride.

Cuernavaca, Mexico, March 3.—(AP) By secluding themselves within the walls of their beautiful country home, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, his family and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh were able to have privacy for their week-end visit and to avoid the photographers, reporters and groups of tourists from Mexico City who had hoped to see them.

Until noon no member of the family appeared outside of the house. The lovely patio or court yard surrounded by the high walls of the residence gave them abundant opportunity for fresh air and sunshine and strolls in the garden away from any intruders. The siege which the photographers maintained all day was profitless. There was no answer when some of the more bold tourists knocked or rang the bell.

Colonel Lindbergh and his fiancée, Miss Anne S. Morrow, dodged the cameramen when they went for an automobile drive in the afternoon and on their return after dark rushed indoors before flashlights could be brought into play.

The future plans of the aviator continued unknown. He was not expected to return to Mexico City before Monday or Tuesday and nothing was known of the manner or date of his return to the United States.

Ohio Woman Is Daily Visitor at Legislature

HASN'T MISSED SESSION IN TEN YEARS

Columbus, Ohio, March 3.—(United News.)—For ten consecutive legislative sessions Ellen Hunt, of Cleveland, has been an unfailing and interested spectator in the gallery of the Ohio state senate.

She has seen governors, state senators and representatives come and go. Few visitors to the capital are as well known as she.

A living example of optimism—that, in brief—characterizes this talkative little woman.

Thirty years ago she was incarcerated in the Cleveland hospital for the insane. Two years later she was released. She claims she was sent to the hospital because she was to have been a witness against a prominent doctor in an estate suit.

In 1904 she won a battle in probate court to change the records to show she was "in a bad nervous condition" when she was sent to the institution.

Just a score of years ago Ellen Hunt took up the fight to force the state of Ohio to pay her for the years she wasted in the hospital. She is seeking $10,000.

Each session her bill has been introduced in the upper house and each session it dies in committee. But Ellen Hunt continues to pack her grip and come down to the capitol from Cleveland.

If she answered roll call, veteran legislators admit the records would show her to be more punctual and regular in attendance than most of the members.

Ellen Hunt's failures thus far have

CHEAP GAS for Atlanta!

Natural gas, the fuel that has played such an important part in the phenomenal growth and prosperity of the Southwest, is being brought to Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama—and perhaps Georgia—from the great gas fields of Northern Louisiana by the Southern Natural Gas Corporation.

Atlanta may have this cheap, smokeless fuel for its homes and industries if the progressive citizens of Atlanta but say the word.

The Southern Natural Gas Corporation is not a "fly by night" promotion scheme. It asks no bonuses. It seeks no promises from companies, organizations or individuals to purchase its securities in order that Atlanta may have natural gas. All it asks is permission to bring this cheap, clean, efficient fuel into Atlanta.

G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Inc., of New York are bankers for the Southern Natural Gas Corporation. They have signed a contract to finance the construction of the line, which in its initial construction program will involve the expenditure of upward of $35,000,000.

Ohrstrom & Company are bankers for numerous other public utilities, including Federal Water Service Corporation, which is the largest group of privately owned water properties in the country, having a valuation of more than $150,000,000; the People's Light & Power Corporation, owning electric and gas utilities throughout the country, representing a valuation of more than $35,000,000; and the Oklahoma Natural Gas Corporation, serving more than 60 cities and towns in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, and owning properties valued at more than $60,000,000. Operating approximately 3,400 miles of pipe lines and serving a population of more than 600,000, the Oklahoma Natural has a record of 23 years of successful natural gas service.

R. C. Sharp on July 1, 1928, resigned as president and general manager of the Oklahoma Natural Gas Corporation to become president of Southern Natural Gas Corporation. The Oklahoma Company, during the eleven years of Mr. Sharp's executive connection with it, grew to where it now is recognized as one of the largest and most efficiently operated natural gas companies in the entire United States.

The success of the project is assured by several hundred contracts entered into for the sale of gas to large users. A contract has been signed for the construction of the line into the cities of Birmingham, Anniston, Chattanooga and intermediate points, and the line will be continued north from Atlanta to Marietta and Cartersville, and south to Macon and other points—if our request for franchise in Atlanta is granted.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

STRANGERS IN THE OLD ORCHARD.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

To strangers be polite I pray;
There's naught to lose and it may pay
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse, poking his head out of a little round hole in the snow in the Old Orchard, suddenly drew back. In a tree right over his head were two birds. Even in that hazy light Danny had seen that they were strangers. It is always well to be suspicious of strangers. To be sure, they were not big like members of the Hawk family, but Danny long ago learned that there are others to watch out for besides Hawks and Owls. He knew that Nanny Jay had more than once enjoyed a dinner of Mouse. And then there was Butcher the Shrike. He was no bigger than Nanny Jay, yet he was an enemy always to be watched for. So Danny ducked down out of sight.

Presently, he very carefully peeped out. The two strangers were still there. Never had he seen any one just like them. Right away he looked at their bills. You can sometimes learn a whole lot from the bill of a bird. Danny looked to see if these bills were hooked. They were not. These bills were short and very thick. Danny recognized them right away as the sort of bills that are used for crushing seeds. He gave a little sigh of relief. Yes, sir, he gave a little sigh of relief. Birds with bills like that are not eaters. The minute he saw those bills he was reminded of the bill of Rosebreast the Grosbeak. These two strangers were just about the size of Rosebreast, too.

"I'm not afraid of these," said Danny to himself, and climbed right out on the snow where he could sit up and see them better.

One was rather handsome. He flew down on the snow only a little way from Danny. His body was quite large and yellow. His tail was black and was forked. There was a big bar of white in each wing. The top of his head was black. His forehead and a streak over the eye were yellow. The sides of his head and neck were a sort of greenish-brown. Danny looked up at the other stranger, which he knew without being told was the mate of the one on the ground.

"It is funny," thought Danny, "how different the birds of the same kind dress. Now Nanny and I dress alike. Yes, sir, Nanny Meadow Mouse and I dress alike. But just look at this couple! So far as the way they are dressed goes, one would never know that they were related."

This was quite true. The strange-er up in the tree was dressed almost altogether in black and white. Wings and tail were black and white. The body was brownish gray with just a little yellowish color around the base of the neck and shoulders. There was a little tinge of yellow on the under parts. The head was all brownish gray.

"Good morning," squeaked Danny. The stranger on the snow looked up. "Good morning," said he. "I hope you are feeling fine," said

Presently he carefully peeped out.

Danny politely.

"Very fine," replied the stranger. "I couldn't feel finer. This seems to be a very nice place here."

"It is," replied Danny. "I take it you have never been here before."

"No," replied the stranger. "I have never been here before. What do you call this place?"

"This," replied Danny, "is the Old Orchard. Have you come far?"

The stranger chuckled. He looked up at his mate in the tree. "He wants to know if we have come far," said he.

The stranger in the tree looked down at Danny and her eyes twinkled. "I suppose," said she, "that some folks would say that we have come quite a distance. Yes, sir, some folks would say that we have come quite a distance. Personally, I think we have come quite far enough. What do you think, my dear?"

Her mate flew up beside her. "I agree with you, my dear," said he. "I like this place. If we can find enough to eat, perhaps we'll spend the rest of the winter here."

MORE TIME GIVEN MEXICAN PRIESTS FOR REGISTRATION

Mexico City, March 3.—(AP)—In response to a petition by Monsignor Antonio Guizar Valencia, bishop of Chihuahua, President Emilio Portes Gil extended to March 15 the time for Catholic priests residing in Mexico to inform the government of their addresses. The first time limit expired March 1.

The bishop pointed out that there were many priests living in remote places who had not had time to comply.

The government has announced that those not complying will be considered rebels or accomplices of rebels and dealt with accordingly.

No sign of skinny yet. There wasn't any fun in our meeting today. All us fellows are worried about the skinny guy. So we said we would sneak over to the pelham side after it got dark, which we did.

"We didn't let on like we were looking for the skinny guy 'cause we didn't want to fight if we could help it. We started out in fours. Johnny, Jerry, Bill and I went ahead. Gee, it was dark."

"First thing I knew I heard Jerry give a yell. I turned around but couldn't even see him. I said, 'What's happened to Jerry?' Johnny and Bill was as surprised as me. Then we heard Jerry's voice like it was a mile away."

"We stood still in our tracks. I didn't care about the pelhams then. I pulled out my flashlight and swung it on the ground. Golly! There was a hole in the ground. Big as a house."

St. Joseph's Pure ASPIRIN as pure as money can buy

THE LARGEST SELLING ASPIRIN IN THE WORLD FOR

COUNCILMAN URGES MEMORIAL COMPLETION

United action toward completion of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial is urged in a letter from Councilman Wiley L. Moore, made public Saturday by G. F. Willis, president of the Memorial association. Mr. Moore pointed out that "no public enterprise before the community approaches in importance the Stone Mountain memorial, and the community should take whatever united action may be necessary and proper to remove all obstacles and go forward with it."

Mr. Moore is president of the Wolford Oil company, chairman of the finance committee of city council, a director of the chamber of commerce, and one of the civic leaders of the community.

His letter to Mr. Willis is as follows: "I have watched with interest and admiration your efforts to carry to completion the Stone Mountain memorial. You are rendering a public service of tremendous importance, and you and the association of which you are president deserve the united and militant support of the entire community."

Inconceivable.

"It is inconceivable to me that we should allow any obstacle to stand in the way of the completion of the monument, or that we should neglect to take whatever united action may be necessary and proper to remove all obstacles and go forward with the work."

"In my business trips over the country I have been impressed with the fact that the first question people ask, in connection with Atlanta, is about the monument. Over and over, time and again, I have encountered this interest. Wherever you go, you find it."

"Often I have thought that we, in Atlanta, do not realize or appreciate what the monument means to this community, this state, this section; at any rate, that we have not heretofore. Now, I am glad to see, there are unmistakable evidences that we are awaking up to it."

"The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, ably led by Mr. Phil Alston, has made completion of the monument one of its major aims of the year. As a director of the chamber I had the satisfaction of voting for that."

Of Greatest Value.

"Fulton county, through its board of commissioners, has placed the services of its attorney at the disposal of your association to assist your attorneys in defending its title to the monument. The city of Atlanta should do likewise, and I believe it will."

"No public enterprise, before the community approaches, even remotely, the Stone Mountain memorial, from the standpoint of magnitude, of importance, of value. When I say value, I do not mean material value alone, but educational and spiritual value."

"The city and county could well afford as a business proposition to help supply the funds to finish the work. I venture to assert that there is not a city of consequence in the country that would hesitate to bond itself, if necessary, to carve a monument on Stone Mountain—if it had Stone Mountain."

"Failure to finish what has been started would stigmatize Atlanta's reputation before the world. But Atlanta does not fail. She has never failed in an undertaking. She will not fail in this."

"Your association is moving ahead, not as rapidly as it would if obstacles put in its path were taken away; but nevertheless you are moving, with courage, patience and a steadfast purpose; eventually you will triumph."

"You have my congratulations and my whole-hearted support. Please call upon me for any service I can render."

Ole Miss Plays N. C. State Georgia Meets Duke in Semi-Finals

N.Y.U. Eleven Will Invade Georgia Soon

Three-Year Contract Calls For Violets to Play at Athens Once.

Georgia is sure of another inter-collegiate battle on its grid schedule for the next three years, according to an announcement Sunday by Dr. S. V. Sanford, of the university, who said that a three-year contract was signed last fall with New York University.

The contract calls for one of the games to be played in the new stadium at Athens if Georgia so desires. Dr. Sanford said Sunday that a date or year for this game had not been decided upon.

Georgia will have a schedule next year that is very much inter-collegiate, playing the Blue of Yale in the new Athens stadium on October 12. The bowl will be dedicated at that time. Then later in the season the Bulldogs travel north to play New York University in New York.

Segrave Puts Car Through Its Paces

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Major H. O. D. Segrave today gave his powerful Golden Arrow its second speed test but due to the condition of the beach, held it down to less than 100 miles an hour.

Wide gullies crossed the beach runway at intervals and the trial today was more or less a "flying over" event, with no attempt at high speed.

Major Segrave pronounced his machine in readiness for the trials, which he expects to see a new record straight-away mark for.

Which will get under way officially during this week. He drove the machine 18 miles today and returned it to its garage under its own power, demonstrating its ability to climb the concrete ramp from the beach.

The tests start March 6 and Major Segrave intends to have his entry on the beach as soon after the starting time as conditions will permit.

Free Throw Cage Bureau Is Opened

Memphis, Tenn., March 3.—(AP)—Announcement has been made by C. Cooley, chairman of the committee on arrangements, that headquarters for the third annual world's basketball free throw tournament will be established at Memphis this week.

Every state in the United States and many foreign countries are expected to send their champions scores here to be counted in the selection of the champion, the chairman announced.

Titleholders in six divisions—senior men, intermediate boys, junior boys, senior girls, intermediate girls and junior girls—as well as team champions, will be announced by the committee on April 10.

Reginald Baker, of Savannah, Ga., and Ellen Baird, of Memphis, are the present champions in the men's and girls' senior divisions, respectively.

Both have announced they would defend their titles.

Purdue Cage Ace Near Scoring Mark

Chicago, March 3.—(AP)—Charles "Stretch" Murphy, of Purdue Big Ten basketball scoring leader, is just 13 points in his season's final game against Ohio State tomorrow night to shatter the all-time conference mark.

Against such tight defensive teams as Wisconsin and Illinois, Murphy slumped badly last week and his prospects were not so bright of breaking the mark of 173, which was established by Johnny Miner, of Ohio State, in 1925. His total today stood at 121—41 field goals and 39 free throws.

Ohio State, however, is a poor defensive team and Murphy may come through.

Second place honors today appeared clinched by Bud Foster, Wisconsin's liability forward.

Billiard Tournament For City Title Is Set

A city-wide three-cushion billiard tournament will be started this week at York's Recreation parlors, it was announced last night by Ted Clark.

The tournament will be open to any players in Atlanta. Three-cushion players wishing to participate in the meet are requested to turn in their entries with Clark at York's parlors.

Southern Bell Girls Defeat Athens, 29 to 27

The Southern Bell girls' sextet of Atlanta defeated the Athens Y. W. C. A. team Saturday night at Athens, 29 to 27, in a game featured by a late rally on the part of the losers.

The first half ended 16 to 8 in favor of the Atlantans but in the closing minutes the home team came to within two points of the ultimate winners. Sixteen girls on the Southern Bell squad and a delegation of 60 rosters from Atlanta were entertained after the game at the Athens Y. W. C. A.

Courtney Fights Tassi in New York Tonight

New York, March 3.—(AP)—With the six-day bicycle race holding sway at present, Metropolitan fight fans have little fistic fodder in store for them this week.

George Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, tackles Nando Tassi, Italian light heavyweight, in a ten-round bout at the Broadway arena tomorrow night. On Tuesday night, Lenox, S. C. Stanislaus Loyza, aggressive Chilean, meets Nat Kawler in the main bout of ten rounds.

Back From Miami

BACK from Miami Beach, where Florida's first fistic frivolities were foisted on the fans we find ourselves plunged into the midst of another hectic conference basketball tournament. Struggling through Florida's and Georgia's rain-soaked roads for a couple of days leaves one in a receptive mood for anything that smacks not of boxing or touring.

It is particularly pleasing to find the conference tournament in the throes of another attack of upsitis. According to the bracket appearing in the morning papers there is but one of the "favorite" teams now left in the tournament and tonight may see the elimination of that one.

THAT, however, is only a possibility, not a probability. Georgia, the "favorite" team left, must play Duke and should take the measure of the Carolinians. Not having seen the Blue Devils in action and having seen the University of Georgia but twice, our judgment may be just as valuable as it was in the Stripling-Sharkey fight, pardon us, contest. In that case Georgia has no chance whatever. Perhaps in all fairness to the Bulldogs we should refrain from picking them to win.

While in the business of picking we may as well put the curse on another team and select North Carolina State to whip the team of twins from Oxford. This appears in the face of the dope to be a hunch rather than a prediction based on figures. These games should be run on a mutual basis, in that case we could back our hunch and with all the real experts picking Ole Miss we would collect some of the cash we gave up on the greyhounds in Florida.

AS stated before, the tournament at its present stage is most satisfying to the spectator. If some favorite were to take the tournament by storm as North Carolina did once or twice the interest would not be half as great. As it is now, there is no certainty at all. To be sure, the gentlemen from Oxford, on the face of the dope should be big favorites, but in this game of basketball the hoop is too small and fortune is too fickle to allow dope to play so large a part.

Most of us want to see the Bulldogs come through and some of us believe they will, but whether or no the success of the tournament is now assured. It is living up to its reputation as a dope-feeding device, and that is as it should be. Therein lies the keen interest.

LASSMAN, INJURED N. Y. U. GRID PLANS TO TAKE UP BOXING IN SHORT TIME

ACE, IS ON ROAD TO RECOVERY

BY ALAN J. GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

Something over three months ago they carried a big hulking figure off the gridiron at Pittsburgh, battered and unconscious.

For days, although the darkest secret prevailed at the time, his life actually was suspended by a thread; for weeks afterwards, his left side paralyzed, he fought an uphill battle.

Today Al Lassman, as happy and healthy-looking a youth as ever, standing 6 feet 4 and scaling 212 pounds, is on his way back to New York to slap his old pals on the back and tell them he has won that battle.

There is not the slightest doubt now that the former captain and star tackle of New York university's football team is on the road to complete recovery. His doctor says so, and so does his coach, John F. (Chick) Mehan, accompanying him on the return trip after nearly six weeks of recuperation in Miami Beach, Fla., in time to share a reunion with the 1928 team at the annual "letter" dinner Tuesday night in New York.

Lassman is so far recovered now that he talks eagerly of fulfilling his ambition for a professional boxing career—an ambition that seemed shattered at first by the injury and his comparatively slow start back to recovery. After being kicked in the head at in proper time, perhaps a year after he has finished his course at N. Y. U., this ambition will be realized.

"See that" and "T. N. T. Al" curves a left hook at the inquisitor's jaw. "And that," followed by an imaginary right cross. The former inter-collegiate heavyweight star and an extraordinary demonstrates that he has regained his shiftness.

Remarkable Story.

Lassman's recovery is a remarkable story, to those who knew but kept to themselves how seriously he was injured after being kicked in the head, suffering a severe concussion, in the gridiron struggle between N. Y. U. and Carnegie last November. Only the rugged vitality and indomitable spirit of a youth of 23 could have pulled him through, Mehan believes.

The only trace now of the paralysis that gripped the big athlete is some stiffness and lack of complete control in two fingers of the left hand. Sunshine and daily massage have brought back nearly all of the lumber usefulness of his affected side. His memory is concerned, it is of some interest to him that Mehan, coaching New York university last fall, held up Gene Tunney as an example to his gridiron men.

"I seldom go to the big fights, but I was so impressed by Tunney's clean-cut performance in beating Heene last July that I applied it to my football teaching. It struck me forcibly there was class, championship class, in every move Tunney made. He was the master. I told my men that if they wanted to be champions on the gridiron they must act like it. There's

"Rest, but with something to occupy his mind and body, he was what he needs now," says Mehan. "So far as boxing is concerned, I will propose that Al wait six months more, then submit himself to a thorough examination by a half dozen physicians. If they put the O. K. on him, then he can spend another six months in training, while also finishing his university course. At the end of that time, I would have him thoroughly examined again for a final decision."

"I see no reason to fear the consequences, on that basis. Al has always been an athlete. I think that given added time for complete recovery, he will run no risk in embarking on a fighting career. His heart is set on it."

With punch, speed and endurance as natural assets, Lassman before he was badly hurt, was considered by competent critics one of the best heavyweight prospects in years.

Tunney Is Example.

It hasn't anything particularly to do with Lassman's prospective fistic career, but it is of some interest to know that Mehan, coaching New York university last fall, held up Gene Tunney as an example to his gridiron men.

"I seldom go to the big fights, but I was so impressed by Tunney's clean-cut performance in beating Heene last July that I applied it to my football teaching. Youthful Pro Defeats Best Of U. S. Stars

Tom Raklets Wins First Tournament From Hagen, Diegel, Farrell, Others.

Bellair, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—A smiling youth, little known in tournament golf, flashed across the horizon here yesterday and today and with deadly accuracy clicked off birdies and pars to win the annual Florida west coast open crown from a field that included veteran titleholders.

Tom Raklets, a 23-year-old pro of Youngstown, Ohio, turning in a gross card of 278, two strokes under par, took the lion's share of the $4,215 purse, a cut of $1,000. It was his first major tournament victory in his five-year professional career.

The youth, after tying with Billy Burke, Westport, N. Y., for the leadership in the first round, went into the second round with 138 holes, and unperceptibly stroked his way to victory. Burke faltered on his second 18, but today cut down the margin held by the young Ohioan to finish in second place with 281.

Clapetta Is Third.

Louis Clapetta, of Hartford, Conn., finished third with 285, and Gene Sarazen, Newport Richey, Fla., with a 287, was fourth. Bob Tupper, Chicago, with 288, nosed out Benmore Shute, Columbus, Ohio, who clicked a 289.

Behind these came Leo Diegel, of Bloomfield, N. Y., Professional Golfers' association and Canadian open champion, in a tie with Al Watrous, of Detroit, with a gross of 290, and Charles J. Goring, of Johnson City, N. Y., with 291.

The fact that the field behind him included these stars and the smiling Walter Hagen, British open champion, seemed to bolster young Raklets' not the least, and with steady nerve and accurate stroke he clipped off par 80 in the first 18 holes today, to give him a card of 296.

He was six strokes ahead of Burke, who also was dead today, after faltering on the second round.

72 On Last Round.

Tweeing off on the final 18 holes, Raklets held the sizzling pace of his previous three rounds, but still had sufficient steadiness to click a 72, giving him a 68-68-70-72 for the combined 278.

And while Raklets stepped along in the van, behind him the half or dozen or more holders of various titles were struggling to hold the lead or another. Farrell with his hickory-shafted clubs that replaced his customary bag of steel ones; Hagen failed to hit his stride and was far back with 295, behind Ed Dudley, of Los Angeles, who grossed 293; youthful Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., who has been among the leaders in various tournaments this year, followed "the Hag" with 296 and John Golden, of Paterson, N. J., barely remained under 300 with a 299.

Some of whose names loom fairly large in the world of mashies, putters and rubies, trailed with scores of 300 or above.

Michigan To Play Oklahoma Victor Badgers for Title In Big Six Race

Chicago, March 3.—(United News.) The Big Ten basketball title will be at stake Monday night when the Wisconsin cagers, leaders of the conference, start with a game with Michigan, starting with a game this evening.

The game is the climax of the Big Ten season. Three other conference games will be played Monday, but the eyes will be fastened on the Badger-Wolverine battle.

Wisconsin has won nine games and lost one. Michigan also has won nine games, but has lost two. The Wolverines clinched second place and kept themselves in the running Saturday when they nosed out Ohio, 27 to 26.

At the first of last week, Missouri, with one defeat in eight starts and tied to Oklahoma, was favored to take the Big Six basketball title, but the team had all the earmarks of a titular fray. Only by a desperate last half rally did the champions overcome a 24-to-11 half-time disadvantage.

Hunter Loses To Hennessey In Three Sets

Miami Beach, Fla., March 3.—(AP) Johnny Hennessey, of Indianapolis, fourth ranking tennis star in the nation, assumed the crown of champion today by his defeat of Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, N. Y., in the singles of the annual Miami Beach tennis tournament.

Hunter, defending champion, and second ranking player in the country, went to his defeat in three straight sets, coming within striking distance of a set victory only once during the match. Both players exhibited a brilliant brand of tennis, with Hennessey's placement bringing him points.

The Indianapolis racket star took him to the first set of the match 6-3, but ran into difficulty in the second when Hunter refused to accept defeat until a 7-5 score had been piled up. Hennessey copied the third set to win the championship. Today's match was for three out of five sets.

Hennessey won other honors during the day when Fritz Mercier, Bethlehem, Pa., seventh ranking player in the tennis firmament, he won the finals in the doubles matches of the tournament. The pair defeated Hunter and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., in four sets, losing the first to the Indians and Van Ryn to the tune of 1-6 in the third encounter. The match ended with a 6-3 set going to Hennessey and Mercier.

Florida U. Golf Team Rallies to Win Meet

St. Augustine, Fla., March 3.—(AP) After a disastrous 5 to 1 defeat in the morning, Nassau team fourtimes today at the Florida team tournament staged a brilliant comeback in the afternoon singles to nose out the St. Augustine links team by a single point.

In the foursomes Joe Capo, local golfer, and C. V. Black, Cincinnati, took all three points from Henry Camp and Bob Archibald this morning, while George Morse, of Garden City, N. J., and J. Laroque Anderson, New York, ran up two points in the afternoon.

The local team had a 5-to-1 decision at noon.

After this afternoon Camp took all three singles points from Anderson and Archibald added another three taken from Black. Harold Weber, five times U. S. amateur champion, substituted for Capo and took all three points in his singles against Ducky Morse. Morse lost his iron and gave away to the finish.

The final score was Florida 9 1-2; St. Augustine 8 1-2.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

D. T. Ricks and M. H. Elder Form New Awning Company

The many friends of David Ricks, for sixteen years connected here in the tent and awning business, will be pleased to know that he has recently gone back into the awning business and has formed a partnership with M. H. Elder, of the Elder Machinery company. They have already begun making awnings under the firm name of Elder-Ricks company, manufacturers of tents, awnings and canvas specialties.

For the present this new firm is located at 653-655 Whitehall street, S. W., and has an experienced force of men and women who have worked under Mr. Ricks for several years in other locations. The work they are now turning out is of the same type that helped Mr. Ricks build his reputation as one of the best canvas men in the country.

The sales manager for this new firm is W. L. Cheatham, formerly of Macon, where he represented Mr. Ricks for many years. J. M. Fambro, formerly of Birmingham, where he also represented Mr. Ricks for many years in that territory, is also connected with the sales department, and L. E. Bailey and B. C. Turner, formerly with Mr. Ricks in the manufacturing end of the business, are back with him in the same capacity.

Mr. Elder, who numbers his business friends by the scores, adds much to this new firm of Elder-Ricks company on account of his wide acquaintance all over the southeast. He will not take much time from the Elder Machinery company in his connection with the new tent and awning company, but will advise with Mr. Ricks in the business expansion from time to time.

This new team, through its traveling representatives and sales connections, will cover all the territory in the southeast that Mr. Ricks had done in former years—that is the Carolinas, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, and is handling excellent lines of the latest styles in awning materials, enabling the company to furnish shades and patterns most suitable to homes, apartment houses, hotels or office buildings.

This firm is already giving its first customers the assurance that all its work will be as good as skill and materials can make it and that it will stand squarely back of every awning it makes or installs.

MANY READ NEWS OF FINANCE NOW

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

(Copyright, 1929, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Today millions of people are reading what was once supposed to be dull, uninteresting financial news. Financial services have sprung up in many cities, centering particularly in New York, and they attempt to explain the economic and financial factors involved in the present complex business situation. Services which recommend to subscribers what to buy and when are in great demand. Brokers' loans, especially the so-called "bootleg" ones, gold export and its effect on credit, the federal reserve policy, open market operations, volume of acceptances in the market, call money rates, time money rates—all these and many more questions are being watched, analyzed and studied by millions of people who never dreamed of such things 10 years ago.

The reason is obvious. People today are the owners of stupendous amounts of stocks and bonds, and the manner of American business, entirely outside of bank and savings deposits. Probably 20,000,000 American people are thus interested in the trend of business.

Want Information.

They want to know about conditions in Russia and Czechoslovakia and Finland and China, trade with South America, foreign exchange and a thousand and one other matters of business.

But there is one subject which has been little discussed and is of very first importance in the present conditions of the nation. That is the increase of time deposits in the banks as compared with demand deposits.

But what has that to do with business, you ask?

It all began in 1917, when Congress, in its attempt to carry on the war, reduced the required legal cash resources of banks belonging to the federal reserve system from 5 percent to 3 percent against so-called "time deposits."

Demand deposit reserves were left at from 7 percent to 13, depending upon the size of the city.

With what result? This released enormous reserves and credit was expanded accordingly. It made for each money, and according to many led to artificially easy money.

But this is not all. As time deposits increased and checking deposits decreased banks felt they could buy securities which were not as liquid as heretofore. Up to that time banks emphasized liquidity of their assets—that type of asset which could be sold without sacrifice on quick notice.

Lowering the reserve which the law required against time deposits made banks a little more fearless—perhaps it made them even careless. They began to carry a smaller percentage of liquid assets. Naturally time deposits increased and demand deposits decreased. Banks more and more invested their surplus in bonds and even non-liquid stocks.

This procedure, carried on since

Florida Air Mail Service Boosts Envelope Demand

Announcement by the postoffice that additional air mail service will be given to Florida points beginning March 1 has resulted in a quickening of local interest in that form of mail service, according to S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope company.

Air-mail planes flying between Atlanta and Miami will make stops to put off and take mail at Macon, Ga.; Daytona Beach, Orlando and Tampa, Fla. From Daytona Beach there will be two "legs"—one going to Tampa, the other to Miami.

"We have prepared air-mail schedules on this new route," declared Mr. Guthman, "and will be glad to send copies to any firms interested, without charge. Our business—that of making envelopes—is a pretty good indicator of their hearty approval of the good of sales promotion activity throughout the south, and the fact that we also manufacture air-mail envelopes enables us to tell of the quickening of interest in that quarter. Of recent weeks there has been a consistent demand for our special air-mail envelopes, which we attribute in good measure to the early opening of this Florida route."

The Atlanta Envelope company is one of the oldest manufacturers of commercial envelopes in the entire south. Established in 1893, the company has extended its business until it now has customers in practically every state in the union. In its Stewart avenue plant is also maintained a modern commercial printing establishment, wherein are printed many of the handsome folders and booklets designed by Atlanta advertisers.

PAST WEEK WITNESSES FIRM TREND IN COTTON

New Orleans, March 3.—(AP)—A fair degree of activity featured the cotton market during the past week and prices were on the upgrade most of the period, due largely to the prompt clearing for March tenders, permitting the satisfactory liquidation of that option, but also to the unfavorable weather experienced during the greater part of the week in the belt and the activity reported in the cotton goods markets.

Not only were the notices of 15,000 bales issued last Saturday promptly stopped by spot interests but later tenders of nearly 10,000 bales additional were also promptly cared for. Much of the cotton tendered on contracts is coming out of the Alabama and Houston certificated stocks. Despite the prompt disposition of the notices issued here the market continued somewhat nervous until the extent and disposition of the notices issued in New York on Tuesday, the first March notice day in that market, became known.

The notices issued in the northern market were not as numerous as had been looked for, calling for between 40,000 and 45,000 bales, and as was the case with the tenders here they were all stopped by spot interests. An interesting feature of the March option liquidation was the small difference prevailing between March and May in both markets.

The successful disposition of the March position, coupled with the unfavorable weather for farm preparations for the new crop and the improved demand for cotton textiles, caused prices to advance until May traded as high as 19.97 or practically $2.50 a bale above the close of Saturday last. July closed the 20-cent line to 20.03, both active months making new highs for the present movement.

Although there was the usual profit-taking early Saturday the market strengthened again at the end owing to the favorable textile advices.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High	Low	Close	Year Ago
March	19.75	19.23	19.47	18.08
May	19.97	19.43	19.87	18.03

DISTRICT LEGION MEET IS HELD AT WAYCROSS

Waycross, Ga., March 3.—(Special.)—The annual convention of the American Legion posts in the eleventh district was held in Waycross today at the Hotel Wayne.

J. A. Rollison, of Waycross, district committee man, presided. Addresses of welcome were made by Mr. Rollison, of Waycross, vice commander for Georgia, and Walter E. Lee, commander of Ware county Post No. 10. The main address was by Mr. Moore, of Thomasville, state commander.

Mr. Moore in his address emphasized the purposes of the American Legion, which it has accomplished, its plans for the future, and the advantages of membership therein.

"Membership," said he, "is open to all who served honorably in the world war and constitutes a means of perpetuating the friendships formed in service. The legion is a democratic organization and no clique has ever been able to dominate it. But it is far more than an organization of friendships. It is rendering service to the community, to the nation, and to its members. Its first care is for the disabled, seeking to cure them and to rehabilitate them in civilian life."

"The American Legion," also said Mr. Moore, "is an efficient teacher of Americanism, placing an emphasis on responsible citizenship, voting, physical education, school attendance, literacy, and is a constant foe of radicalism and extreme pacifism."

The Georgia department has been one of the most active and is now giving chief attention to child welfare, physical education among youths, and protection in every way for Georgia children.

The delegates were guests at luncheon of Ware County Post No. 10. Those responding to toasts were Leonard Moore, state president; Mrs. Horace Holden, of Athens, state president of the auxiliary; Miss Leila Summerville, of Waycross, district committee man for the auxiliary; Mrs. Thad Lee, president of the auxiliary for Ware County Post No. 10; James D. Gould, commander of the Valdosta post, and C. C. Lismann, commander of the Thomasville post.

The delegates included: Louis A. Moore, of Thomasville; Dr. George E. Fussell, Albert V. Opendenrow, E. H. Anderson, James D. Gould, L. Koegel, of Valdosta; E. J. Ennis, Charles F. Barnhill, O. C. Lismann, of Brunswick; Hoyt C. Brown, of Lawton; W. M. Lee, of Blackshear; Dr. Paul K. McGee, Miss Leila Summerville, Mrs. Thad Lee, E. J. Wylie, H. B. Lee, Jr., Beech Poole, John W. Lee, of Macon; L. E. Mitchell, F. A. Rollison, Leon F. Hobbs, Thad Lee, L. E. Pedrick, of Waycross, and Mrs. Horace Holden, of Athens.

Many Designs Featured By Enterprise Marble Co.

The visitor to almost any cemetery will see neglected, unmarked graves. Surely the families of many of the dead might at times visit them and place flowers or make some arrangements even at this late date to see that the loved ones' graves are suitably marked.

Of all people in the world, Georgians and those of nearby states have the least reason to let graves of their loved ones remain unmarked, for within the confines of this state may be found the largest and best supply of marble and granite to be found anywhere in the world. The cost of headstones is less near the base of supply than at remote distances.

The cost of headstones and other grave markers varies from a few dollars up, but as the size and design are subject to the buyer's individual taste and pocketbook, it requires a well-stocked sample and show room to give the average person the real opportunity of selecting what he wants.

The Enterprise Marble company, of Marietta street, comes very near to showing about all the best designs in modern headstones and vaults.

Both members of this firm, the Redd brothers, have been in this line for a good many years. They lend their counsel and advice to all who seek it in the selection of markers and also give all information that governs regulations as to size and height permitted in the different cemeteries in this section of Georgia.

The Enterprise Marble company maintains a marble finishing shop, and any design wanted is executed to the order of the buyer. The company's showrooms and shops are easily accessible, and plenty of short-time parking spaces is available in the vicinity. Those who have a loved one out of the cemetery should call and get the reasonable Enterprise prices on marble or granite headstones.

WOODMAN OF WORLD HEADS PLAN PROGRAM

Savannah, Ga., March 3.—(AP)—Robert C. Plunkett, of Macon, head counsel of Georgia, Woodmen of the World, and Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, of Atlanta, state manager of the Woodmen's Circle, met with the various committees of the Woodmen of the World, which will be held in the municipal auditorium, Savannah, March 15 and 16. It is expected that between 500 and 700 delegates will attend the convention, which will be held in the municipal auditorium. Sovereign Commander W. A. Fraser, of Omaha, will be a visitor, as will be Mrs. Mary E. La Rocca, of Omaha, national president of the Woodmen's Circle, the auxiliary to the men's organization.

The program contains among numerous addresses, the following by high officers of the two bodies: On Friday, March 15, Mayor Gordon Saussey, of Savannah; State Manager T. L. Bennett, of Atlanta; State President of the Circle Mrs. Stella M. Smith, of Macon; Sovereign Commander W. A. Fraser, of Omaha; Head Consul R. G. Plunkett, of Macon; National President of the Circle Mrs. Mary E. La Rocca, of Omaha, Neb., and national directors from some of the southern states are to make addresses. In the evening the initiation of a large class is the main order of business.

Saturday, March 16, the program includes the election of officers and their installation and the selection of the next meeting place for the state convention.

Social features of the convention include an oyster cook and trips about the country and city.

MERCER TO RECEIVE DR. BATTLE PAINTING

Macon, Ga., March 3.—(Special.)—An oil painting of the late Dr. Cullen Battle, one of the founders of Mercer university, will be presented to the university by T. S. Lowry, of Macon, at the chapel hour Wednesday. The portrait was painted by Cullen Battle IV, of Asheville, N. C., a descendant of the Mercer founder, Dr. E. T. Holmes, Macon, Mercer trustee, will accept for the university.

Dr. Battle came to Georgia in 1818 and settled in Hancock county. He was baptized by the Rev. Jesse Mercer, for whom the Macon university is named.

At a meeting of the Georgia Baptist convention in Milledgeville in 1928 Joseph Penfield died and bequeathed the Baptists of Georgia the sum of $2,500 to be used for educational purposes, it being provided that the denomination should raise an equal amount. Dr. Battle was one of 26 men who made donations to fill the requirement of Penfield's will.

Thus was born Mercer institute, located at Penfield, Ga., and destined to become Mercer university.

Mansfield Players of Macon This Week Give "Smilin' Through"

Macon, Ga., March 3.—(Special.)—"Smilin' Through," which has been called the "greatest romance the stage has ever seen," will be presented at this week at the Grand theater here by the Scott-Mansfield players.

Margaret Mansfield, popular leading lady, will be seen in the dual role of an Irish girl and a diminutive lady who dies upon her wedding night. Jane Cowell's portrayal made this character famous in stage history.

A. E. Scott, manager of the players, will represent John Carteret, the husband whose faith equals that of the wife. He will also play the role of the wife's lover, a young man who will play both the young and the old John.

Grant Gordon will be the young suitor of the modern girl. Howard Fisk will be a doctor. Others having important parts are Constance Corbett, Elizabeth Rathburn and Parker Mills.

The action of the play takes place in an English garden. Special settings have been prepared to lend the atmosphere of the period. Appropriate costumes have been secured. Mr. Scott said, and the orchestra will play the special music written for "Smilin' Through."

CLEANING—DYEING

Tarzan of the Apes needed no interpreter to translate the story of those distant shots. With incredible rapidity he was swinging through the trees straight toward the savages' village. White men, men of his own race, might even now be suffering the agonies of torture. On he sped.

Presently he caught the reflection of a distant blaze. Ah—he was not quite too late! The death blow had not been struck. From the nearest tree Tarzan coiled his rope. Then there arose suddenly above the fiendish cries of the dancing demons, the awful challenge of the ape-man.

The rope sped with singing whir above the black's heads. A huge fellow lunged backward; struggling and shrieking, his body moved toward the trees. Then straight into the air, disappearing into the foliage. The blacks, screaming with fright, raced madly for the village gate. D'Arnot was left alone!

Now from the trees came a crash and the black came sprawling to earth again, to lie quietly where he had fallen. Immediately after came a white body, alighting erect. D'Arnot saw a clean-limbed young giant emerge and come quickly to him. . . . Some new creature of torture, doubtless.

Without a word Tarzan of the Apes cut the bonds that held the Frenchman. Weak from suffering and loss of blood, he would have fallen but for the strong arm that caught him. He felt himself lifted from the ground. There was a sensation as of flying. Then he lost consciousness.

Foreign Picture Pleases Sunday Preview Critics

First release of World-Wide Pictures, a company formed to present to American audiences films made in foreign countries with foreign stars, "Moulin Rouge" was presented Sunday afternoon at the Metropolitan theater by C. R. Beaumont, manager of the local branch of Educational Films, through courtesy of Carter Barron, manager of the theater.

With a synchronized score, "Moulin Rouge" may be a trifle long for the average audience, but it is enthralling if only for exotic touch to the celluloid, while the story is very nice, too. Olga Chekova, star of French films, who is a new face to American audiences, is featured in "Moulin Rouge."

It is a story of the famous Paris theater, and of Miss Chekova, who plays the role of the sensational star, Mlle. Parysis. Despite her youth and eroticism, she has a grown daughter, who aspires to the hand of the son of a wealthy French nobleman, who opposes the marriage.

This youth is madly in love with the daughter until he sees the mother; then his affections are torn from the daughter and he suffers a blind, unattainable passion for the reigning star of Paris. To aid this affection, the daughter is a trifle weak, and on the eve of their marriage, gets rather tipsy. He sees but one avenue which leads to escape from the maddening passion that motivates him, and that is death. He loosens the brakebands of his car, and when he swoons in Chekova's apartment, the daughter takes the car over a perilous mountain road. On his recovery, the horrified boy gives chase, it seemed, please the large Sunday afternoon preview audience.

That master directorial magician, E. A. DuPont, who first gave us "The Canary Murder Case," opening at the Metropolitan today, has a new and magnificent work. An Educational talking comedy also delighted the audience.

VICTIM OF THUGS IS NOW EXPECTED TO SURVIVE SHOTS

H. J. Monroe, of 702 Marietta street, who was shot through the chest and right arm early Saturday night by two negro bandits at Young and Decatur streets, because he said, he refused to be held up and robbed, was reported to be in "fair" condition at Grady hospital late Sunday night.

Monroe at first was thought to have been injured fatally, but an X-ray picture at the hospital revealed that the bullet in his chest had missed the lungs.

Detectives assigned to the case reported Sunday that they had no clues to the identity of the negro thugs.

MADGE BELLAMY in 'FUGITIVES'
AL ABOTT and MEXICAN ORCHESTRA at the VITAPHONE FOX MOVIE TONE NEWS RIALTO story of the South African diamond mines, with thrills galore. The stage bill of five Loew vaudeville acts is headlined by an elaborate miniature revue, "A Bunch of Tricks," with 13 talented artists in a series of specialties.

Howard.
Who killed the most beautiful woman on Broadway? Only Philo Vance can solve this baffling and terrifying mystery, which he does in "The Canary Murder Case," opening at the Howard today for the week. Having reached its eighth edition in novel form and enjoyed a distribution of over 100,000 copies, this popular novel has been brought to the screen in an all-talking picture with the famous character, Philo Vance, played by the great actor, William Powell.

Louise Brooks takes the role of the "Canary," a Broadway beauty, whose murder furnishes the basis of the mystery story. On the stage Louie Lowry and his merry musical men of "Pleasure Pirates," featuring Grace DuFaye, the Paragon quartet and twelve Gould girls.

Metropolitan.
Reminiscent of the great drama of "Way Down East," is the epic of man's hates and loves, "The Tollers," being shown at the Metropolitan this week. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Johnna Hanson have the leading roles. An "Our Gang" comedy with sound, "The Old Gray Horse," tops the program for the Metropolitan and offers a more unusual laugh. Fox Movie-phones acts, as well as other subjects of interest.

Rialto.
The Rialto offers this week "Fugitives," starring Madge Bellamy, marking this star's second appearance in a sound and talking opus. Based on the story, "Exile," from the pen of the popular and renowned author, Richard Harding Davis, "Fugitives" has drawn acclamations from critics. The tale depicts the adventures and romance of a young cabinet girl who, wrongly accused of murder, flees from the bright lights of Broadway to Africa to win her freedom. Also on the program are two clever Vitaphone acts, as well as other subjects of interest.

Loew's Grand.
Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson and Pauline Frederick are starred in "On Trial," the feature screen attraction at Loew's Grand theater for the first three days of this week. It portrays the solution of a mystery murder case, with a thrilling courtroom scene. Beginning Thursday, Greta Garbo and John Gilbert will be seen in a return engagement of "A Woman of Affairs."

Cameo.
In "The Sins of the Fathers," the feature at the Cameo today and Tuesday, Emil Jennings plays the role of a German-American, Wilhelm Spengler. Ruth Chatterton, sensational new hit on the screen, is Greta, who steals Spengler from his first wife, which role ZaSu Pitts portrays. Matthew Betz is Guiz, the menace of the story.

This production has everywhere been hailed as one of the best Frank Lloyd ever directed.

Alamo No. 2.
Drama and romance, the kind usually found in the lives of children of wealthy parents who are separated, is found in "Children of Divorce," the new Paramount picture now showing at the Alamo No. 2 theater. This production has everywhere been hailed as one of the best Frank Lloyd ever directed.

Empire.
"Glorious Betsy," the film narrative of the famous Betsy Patterson, who married the brother of Napoleon Bonaparte, is seen today at the Empire theater, where recently installed Vitaphone and Movietone apparatus have given it all the value which enhanced the original presentation at the larger downtown theaters. A beautiful musical score, together with the voices of Bonaparte and Dolores Costello, who plays the role of Betsy, are reproduced perfectly.

Ponce de Leon.
Fantastic shadows, weird apparitions, and the enormous domain of the Great Beyond—these are the background for one of the strangest roles an actor has ever been called upon to play—Lon Chaney's part in "Ponce de Leon," now playing at the Ponce de Leon theater.

Ghosts, and the grim things known as vampires, or the "undead" corpses that desert their graves at night to prey upon the living, and other eldritch beings of Europe's many superstitions come to life and being in a strange phantasmagoria of horror—creaky, supernatural details to a story that, in its real analysis, sticks to scientific fact. Tomorrow Billie Dove in "The Night Watch."
